G-MEN'S GUNS WIPE OUT BRADY GANG

JAP AVIATORS OPEN FIRE ON BRITISH GROUP

Embassy Official and Several Others Attacked in Autos Flying Union Jack.

FORCED TO SEEK COVER

Claim Cars Could Be Easily Identified; Were on Way to Shanghai.

By The Associated Press

SHANGHAI, Oct. 12 — Three automobiles belonging to the British embassy were machine-gunned today by two squadrons of Japanese warplanes. None of the occupants were injured.

The staff cars in which S. S. Murray, the assistant air attache of the British embassy, was riding with several other Englishmen, were attacked by the raiding Japanese planes near Minhong, 14 miles south of Shanghai, about 4 p. m.

Although the three motor cars carried the Union Jack, the British officials said, the Japanese warplanes continued their machine gunning after the occupants jumped from the machines and sought cover.

Sure They Were Japs

The British asserted the cars could have been identified easily and added there was no doubt that the attacking planes were Japanese.

Herbert Phillips, British consul general, said an immediate investigation had been ordered although no details of the assault had yet been received by his office.

The embassy staff cars were enroute to Shanghai from Nanking on the same highway on which two Japanese planes recently seriously injured the British ambassador to China by bombing and machine gunning the automobile in which he was making a similar journey.

British sources received the news of the episode with the gravest concern in view of the previous attack on Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Hugessen, the ambassador.

The British consul general immediately communicated with the Chinese authorities requesting their assistance in the investigation.

Attack Chapei

While the Japanese army launched a heavy aerial bombardment on the strongly-held Chinese Chapei sector on the northern fringe of the international settlement, a spokesman said that, weather permitting, the long ever due Japanese big push would get underway in the immediate future.

Roosevelt Chat May Touch on Several Issues

Foreign Affairs, Budget and Crop Control Expected To Be Main Topics.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—President Roosevelt's "fireside chat" tonight probably will touch on a half dozen subjects, it was said at the White House today, but their nature was not disclosed.

Secretary Stephen T. Early said the precedent for the speech—presumably reviewing the President's western trip—was set by a talk after last year's drouth inspection tour.

Guesses as to the principal topic ranged from foreign affairs to the federal budget, but most observers believed Mr. Roosevelt would emphasize the prospect of huge crop surpluses and his belief in the need for legislation to control production.

Some predicted he would announce an extra session of congress for the middle of next month to deal with the problem. The President's speech, to be broadcast nationally at 9:30 p. m. E. S. T., will be his tenth "fireside chat" since he entered the White House on March 4, 1933. It is to be delivered from the executive mansion shortly before Mr. Roosevelt leaves for Hyde Park, N. Y.

Four Posts in County Will Install Officers in Ceremony at Dugout.

A dinner at 6:15 tonight at Hotel Harding will honor Commander James V. Suhr of Cleveland, head of the Ohio department, American Legion, who will come to Marion for the county-wide installation of officers of the Legion posts in Caledonia, LaRue, Prospect and Marion tonight in the Dugout.

Sharing honors with the new state commander will be Floyd Hartpence of Westerville, district commander. The state head will be the guest speaker tonight, and the district commander will preside as the installing officer for the work.

The visit is the first to be paid the posts by Commander Suhr since his elevation to state commander at Columbus late in the summer.

Commander Suhr will come to Marion from Cleveland. Officers of the various posts joining in the countywide installation will attend the dinner. The meeting is scheduled for 8.

MANAGER OF GRILL GIVEN FINE OF $200

Thirty-Day Jail Sentence Suspended; Accused of Selling to Minors.

S. C. Roth, 36, manager of Stone's grill at 119 South Main street, was fined $200 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in the county jail today when Municipal Judge Martin denied his motion for a new trial. He had been found guilty Sept. 16 by a municipal court jury of selling liquor to minors.

The county jail sentence was suspended by Judge Martin and the fine temporarily suspended pending further action in the case. Roth, who is represented by Attorney Roy J. Stone of Columbus, has 20 days in which to file an appeal in the common pleas court.

The charge against Roth was filed by state officers following raids on two Marion night clubs, Aug. 14, in which five proprietors and two waitresses were arrested on charges ranging from selling liquor to minors to furnishing intoxicants to inebriated persons.

Sentencing of Carmello Rizzo, 56, of 256 Oak street and A. O. Lambrose, 46, of 457 Silver street, co-partners in the LaMar restaurant at 526 West Center street, is still pending in municipal court. Rizzo's attorneys filed a motion for a new trial after he was found guilty by a municipal court jury on a charge of selling intoxicants to minors. Lambrose was found guilty on a similar charge when he acted as his own counsel at a hearing before Judge Martin.

Revocation of the liquor license held jointly by Rizzo and Lambrose was ordered following a hearing before the state liquor control board in Columbus. State officers confiscated all intoxicants at the LaMar restaurant following the revocation.

SECOND G. O. P. MEETING TONIGHT

The second party meeting of the municipal campaign will be held by Republicans tonight in party headquarters on the third floor of the Marion Federal Savings & Loan association.

The meeting will begin at 6:30 with a buffet dinner instead of at 7:30 as previously announced. Party leaders and candidates will speak. The meeting is open to all Republicans and Bud H. Lawson, chairman of the Marion County Republican Central and Executive committees, will be in charge.

Council Delays Final Action On 1938 Budget

Adoption Held Up Until Thursday for Ruling on Pensions; Mayor Has Plan To Pay Debts.

City council last night deferred action on the municipal budget for 1938 to Thursday night, awaiting an opinion of City Solicitor Ralph E. Carhart on the advisability of including in it a request for sufficient funds to meet firemen's and policemen's pensions in the event the Ohio supreme court rules pensions to be an obligation of the city.

Legality of council's action abolishing pensions early last year is being tested in a suit pending before the state high court. Marion county common pleas court upheld council but the district appellate court ruled in favor of the pensioners. The city has taken the case to the supreme court.

In another important development at last night's meeting, council heard Mayor Frederick C. Smith disclose a plan to pay off approximately $79,000 in overdue city operating bills for 1935 and part of 1936 through an issue of bonds against delinquent taxes. One feature of the plan is that the city would sell the bonds to its own sinking fund trustees, interest payments thus going back into the city treasury. Other matters before council included authorization of installation of three street lights, a recommendation of the police committee that more traffic lights be installed, and a warning that city property would be seized to satisfy the judgment of John Powell, former municipal court clerk, for back salary unless provision is made to pay the judgment.

Budget Asks $300,627

The 1938 budget, as it stands without any provision for firemen's and policemen's pensions, calls for $300,627.77 for municipal operating purposes. This is $29,279.77 more than the city was allowed for operating purposes in 1937, and is $12,253.07 less than the amount the city asked for in preparing its budget for 1937.

Major differences in the budget for 1938 as compared with the amount the city received for 1937 operations are an increase of approximately $15,000 in order to put all salaries on a 100 per cent basis instead of the 15 per cent pay cut in effect this year, purchase of one or two police cars and purchase of new equipment in the garbage department. All of these increases were sought for 1937, but the amount allowed the city for the year did not provide for them.

The principal reason for the 1938 budget request being lower than the amount sought when the budget was prepared for 1937 is the reduced street lighting contract signed this year with the Marion-Reserve Power Co.

The budget shows the city expects to take in $92,980 from its various revenue-producing departments in 1938, such as the hospital, garbage collection fund and municipal court, approximately the same as the estimate for this year. The difference between this revenue and the amount asked for operating purposes next year is sought from real estate and sales taxes.

Pension Proposal

Councilman W. M. Fabian, a former finance committee chairman, last night proposed that the firemen's and policemen's pensions be included in the budget. He argued that funds for the pensions, if they were still in effect, would come from the municipal levy within the 10-mill limitation. Failure to put the item in the budget would mean, in the event

PAROLE BOARD GETS NEW MEN

Sharp and Haslop Given New Jobs; Judge and Lawyer Take Their Places.

ALL DAVEY MEN NOW

Dayton Woman To Replace Carl Smith of Kenton as Agency's Secretary.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 12—A revamped Ohio parole board had ahead of it today the task of fulfilling Gov. Martin L. Davey's expressed hope for a program "which will demand public respect and place Ohio near the top of the 48 states in the union."

The governor, climaxing an investigation and study of the parole system, accepted resignations of two members late yesterday and appointed a judge and an attorney to replace them.

Charles R. Sharp of Ravenna and Charles L. Haslop of Newark stepped out—receiving appointments to new state positions—and former Common Pleas Court Judge N. Craig McBride of Hillsboro and Attorney Frank Sotak of Cleveland were named in their stead, affective Friday.

The four-member board becomes wholly Davey appointed. Recently named were former Common Pleas Court Judge Harry W. Jewell of Delaware and Reverdy Ransom of Wilberforce, Afro-American Methodist Episcopal bishop.

Another imminent change will make Mrs. Ann Makley of Dayton board secretary in place of Carl W. Smith of Kenton who will take another state job.

Gov. Davey asserted that Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy's investigation of the parole system did not reflect on Haslop or Sharp. He named Haslop to head a new division of parole investigation and Sharp to be supervisor of institutions in the welfare department. Each pays $5,000 yearly, $1,000 less than the parole board posts.

FIREMEN CALLED AGAIN TO AID BABY

For the second time city firemen were called to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Williams of 524 West Center street yesterday to assist with an inhalator in treatment of their six-week-old son, Robert. The firemen also assisted immediately after birth of the child and started him on the road to life, according to the family physician.

Yesterday firemen were called at 2:50 p. m. after the child seemed to have difficulty in breathing and administered oxygen through the inhalator for several minutes until the condition cleared, the physician said. The child is reported to be breathing normally at present.

LAW LAXITY REVEALED

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 12—The arrest here of James Siffin, 27, on burglary charges brought about the disclosure today that the man had been twice paroled from the Ohio State reformatory without being turned over to the common pleas court for trial on pending burglary indictment.

BRITISH DRAFT NEW NOTE TO MUSSOLINI

London Now Believed Willing To Let Non-Intervention Committee Act.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 12—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, in joint command of British foreign policy, drafted insistent but moderate action today to change Premier Mussolini's mind regarding foreign soldiery in Spain.

Diplomatic sources indicated this course—supported by France—would not increase the danger of a general war but was expected to bring the Italian premier into line on non-intervention.

The change of course was plotted in the face of a gathering insurgent offensive in the peninsular civil war.

Neither the French nor the British are now inclined to be temperamental or take precipitate action to counter Il Duce's refusal to talk about withdrawal of his blackshirt troops in a three-power meeting as France and Britain had proposed.

Indications increasingly pointed to use of the London non-intervention committee—representatives of 27 European powers—in an attempt to reach an accord with Italy or Spain.

J. T. MARRINER, U. S. CONSUL IN SYRIA, KILLED

Slain by Armenian to Whom He Had Refused American Visa.

CHAUFFEUR NABS ASSASSIN

Victim Known Throughout European Diplomatic Service as Effective Agent.

By The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Syria, Oct. 12—James Theodore Marriner, one of the best known American foreign service officers, was shot and killed today by an Armenian to whom he had refused a visa to enter the United States.

The assassin's gun felled the tall, scholarly consul general as he stepped from his automobile before his office for the start of the day's official business.

Marriner's chauffeur captured the assassin.

On Way to Office

Marriner had arrived at the consulate general from his mountain home in Broummana, outside Beirut, when he was attacked at 8:30 a. m.

Police, after a preliminary investigation, said the killer's name was Mejardich Karayan.

They reported he pumped six bullets from a revolver into Marriner at close range. The consul general was struck in the head, abdomen and thigh.

An investigating magistrate examined Karayan. The prisoner, police announced, admitted that Marriner's refusal to issue a visa for the United States was the motive for the attack.

The authorities said the American official had blocked Karayan's entry on the grounds of insanity in the Armenian's family.

Effective Agent

Marriner was known throughout the diplomatic service in Europe as a quiet-spoken, effective agent of his government. He was six feet tall and weighed about 185 pounds.

Except for three years in the state department at Washington, 1923-26, when he also handled western European affairs, Marriner spent most of his career in Europe.

He was a former counselor of the United States embassy at Paris where he was known prin-

COME IN OR GET OUT SAYS GREEN TO C.I.O.

Convention Votes A.F.L. Council Full Power To Expel Lewis Unions.

By The Associated Press

DENVER, Oct. 12—The American Federation of Labor extended today to its unions which have joined John L. Lewis' C. I. O. their choice of the olive branch of peaceful return or the club of expulsion.

The A. F. L. executive council will meet at the close of the federation's convention here, probably tomorrow night on Thursday, but there was little indication it will attempt to wield immediately the power to expel, conferred yesterday by a 25,616 to 1,227 vote of the convention.

"The door is open," William Green, federation president, told the convention before it voted the power he and others of the council had requested.

"The hand of the A. F. L. is extended. The voice of the A. F. L. says 'please come back home.' If any one of these (C. I. O.) organizations comes to the door we'll be there to welcome them and embrace them."

Green simultaneously warned the convention that the council will wield its expulsion powers against "obstinate" unions.

COHAN LAYS 'EM IN AISLE WITH ROOSEVELT SATIRE

Good-Natured Ribbing of President Also Includes Garner, Bankhead, Cummings and Justice Black.

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Oct. 12—Staid Boston circles—Republican and Democratic alike—reeled with laughter today over George M. Cohan's tap-dancing satirization of President Roosevelt and the new deal.

Cohan scored one of the most notable triumphs of his career last night in the world premiere of "I'd Rather Be Right," George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart's ribtickling musical-political comedy.

The veteran comedian, returning to his first song and dance role in 10 years, brought down the house when, portraying a genial, tap-dancing President Roosevelt, he crooned:

"If I'm not re-elected,
I'll never fear for hunger,
I'll never fear for thirst;
I have one son with duPont,
And another one with Hearst."

The satire, reminiscent of the annual gridiron club shows in Washington at which newspapermen poke good-natured fun at political platforms and personalities, portrayed "A.M. Landon" as an ultimate family [illegible] Roosevelt who [illegible]

State Patrol Officer Says Killer's Tactics Resemble Those of Indiana Gang.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 12 — Col. Lynn Black, superintendent of the Ohio highway patrol, said today he would make every effort to determine if the Al Brady gang, two members of whom were killed in Bangor, Me., was connected with the Sept. 27 slaying near Freeport, O., of Patrolman George Conn.

The Brady gang, as well as Charles and Frank Bird and James Widmer, who escaped from the Cuyahoga county jail Sept. 17 while awaiting trial on bank robbery charges, have been suspected in the slaying of Conn, whose bullet-pierced body was found in a roadside ditch near Freeport, Sept. 28.

Capt. George Mingle, in charge of the Conn slaying investigation, declared a week ago that the tactics of the killers resembled those of the Brady gang.

The Brady gang also was charged at Piqua, O., with the March 21, 1936, slaying of Edward Lindsay in a grocery holdup. Al Brady, James Dalhover and Clarence Lee Shaffer Jr., also were linked with a bank holdup at Greenville, O., and jewelry store robberies in Greenville, Dayton, and Lima.

Report of the slaying came as "good news" to law enforcement officers of southwestern Ohio—scene of frequent hunts for the mob.

Only last May the burned wreckage of an automobile in which the gang escaped from the Hancock county, Ind., jail, in October, 1936, was found alongside a highway near Lebanon.

Cincinnati has been the center of frequent hunts for the gang because Dalhover has relatives throughout the section. Detective Fred Stegenhorst, who described him as a man suffering frequently the pangs of homesickness, said Dalhover returned periodically to visit his two children, who have been in the care of kin.

Brady and Shaffer likewise have resided here, county Police Captain Charles B. Coddington declared, adding they engaged for a time in the running of untaxed whiskey from Kentucky into Ohio.

GANG TRACED TO STORE

Machine Guns Belch Steel as Trio Emerges After Buying Ammunition.

By The Associated Press

BANGOR, Me., Oct. 12—G-men wiped out the notorious Indiana gunman-gangster, Al Brady, and one of his mobsmen today in a sensational five-man gunfight on Bangor's busiest downtown street.

A third gangster, superficially wounded, threw down his gun and surrendered. One federal agent, Walter Walsh, was wounded. Doctors said his wound was not serious.

The dead:

Al Brady, 35, wanted for three slayings and several robberies.

Clarence Shaffer Jr., a Brady mobsman.

The wounded:

James Dalhover, Brady mobsman; head grazed by bullet.

Gang Traced to Bangor

The gangsters, who long have terrorized the midwest with their forays upon banks and their armed bravado against officers of the law, had been traced to Bangor by the department of justice agents, working with Indiana state police.

Brady and his two companions went early today to a sporting goods store to buy ammunition. A squad of G-men stationed themselves in a vacant building across the street, with machine guns poised.

When Brady, Shaffer and Dalhover emerged, the G-men opened fire.

The gunmen, surprised, sought cover, whipping out their pistols as they dodged behind posts and parked cars. They blazed away in return and busy Central street was swept by the chattering cross-fire of machine-guns and pistols.

Deputy sheriffs and Bangor police hastily cleared the streets of passersby who miraculously escaped injury, and kept curious onlookers beyond range.

Battle for Five Minutes

But the destruction of Brady and his men was not as simple as the killing of the more famous Indiana-born gangster, John Dillinger, who also fell before G-man guns. The firing today went on for five minutes before Brady and Shaffer lay dead before the horrified gaze of scores of Bangor citizens on their way to work.

In an automobile the gunmen had parked outside the store, officers found two army machine guns, a can of engine oil and blankets. The car bore Ohio registration plates numbered KY747.

After the coup, the officers said 17 federal officers, headed by Myron Guerney, had been in the city working on the case during the past four days. They sprang into action today when Inspector Frank McClay of the Bangor police reported the bandit car was entering the city.

Thomas J. Crowley, chief of the Bangor police, disclosed the Brady gang had been waiting a week for arrival of the two machine guns found in the bandit car. He said it was his opinion a fourth member of the Brady "mob" was in the city, presumably the gangster who brought the machine guns.

Crowley estimated that about 50 shots were fired in the belief but deadly exchange.

In the killing of Brady, the department of justice counted a victory which they charge included the murder of an Indianapolis policeman. Richard Rivers, an Indiana state policeman, Paul Milligan, and Edward Lindsay, of Piqua, O., grocery clerk.

Brady also led his mob in numerous raids and banks in the midwest, the officers said. He was known, like Dillinger, as a desperate criminal, with a "never-say-die" spirit.

Trap Plans Not Revealed

The government men declined to reveal the details of the climactic work that led to the slaying of the gang's pretence here. It was recalled that Brady, on one occasion boasted:

"I'll make John Dillinger look like a punk."

But today the G-men made Brady look like John Dillinger that Chicago night when federal [illegible] fled from the "finger woman," "the girl in red" [illegible]

Harding Scouts Tell of Strong Findlay Aerial Attack

Youthful West Virginian Jabs Foe Into Submission

Blond Buddy Knox, 22-year-old West Virginian, stole the spotlight of last night's hectic session of the break-it-off-society at the Marion Steam Shovel arena by winning over the grimacing German, Fritz Kruger, in what was Buddie's debut bout here. Kruger's countryman, Karl Von Lehman, went down to defeat by disqualification in his scrap with Tiger Moore of Benton, Ill., in the second of the featured 90-minute battles.

Packing as much punch in his clenched left first as the kick of an army mule, Knox laid his German opponent low with jab to the jaw. His barrage of retaliation came only after Kruger's rough tactics had more than score of jeering, hooting spectators swarming to the ringside demanding his scalp. Spectators were aroused to near-riot frenzy by the unmerciful roughness of Kruger, who resorted to everything in the books to gain an advantage over his younger opponent.

Buddie won the first fall over Kruger on a series of body flops and slams, winding up the round with a shoulder press at the end of 14 minutes. Kruger's unwillingness to break clean or to refrain from hair pulling, choking and finger splitting, got him the disfavor of fans early in the match. Knox's win in the initial round cooled but slightly the crowd's hatred of the German grappler.

Kruger unloosed a scathing tongue on his opponent, the referee and ringsiders who handed him the Bronx cheer for his efforts. His mean temperament led to additional trouble when he wrapped Knox's neck in the ropes and had spectators crowding to the ringside to assist in freeing the West Virginian. The German evened the scrap with Knox by taking the second fall in four minutes with a crab hold.

The final round found Knox pushing the fight, with Kruger seeking the protection of the ropes on numerous occasions. Knox slugged the German's jaw in return for being pummeled while Kruger applied a head hold. Kruger almost brought about a riot when twice he wrapped Buddie's neck between the ropes and hampered the referee from freeing him. Excited spectators jumped up on the ring and a leader was all that was lacking in inciting a free-for-all.

Knox, however, made short work of the affair by jerking out of Kruger's head hold and plastering a hefty left jab along the side of the German's face. The German sank to the mat and Buddie scored the fall with a shoulder press. Kruger attempted to continue the fight after losing and even went so far as to take a swing at the referee. With another barrage of lefts by Knox, the German apparently decided the odds were against him and finally left the ring to walk through a hostile crowd on his way to the dressing room.

The Moore-Von Lehman bout, which rang down the curtain on last night's activity, went to the third fall before the grizzled German veteran was disqualified on a foul. Von Lehman won the first fall with an elbow jolt and press in 13 minutes and Moore returned to even the score in seven minutes with a series of chest punts. The final round went five minutes, when the huffing-puffing German lifted Moore waist high and dropped him straddle across his knee. Referee Griffith halted the match and handed Moore the decision by disqualifying Von Lehman.

Arabia's Prince Nihalikas and Lefty Pacer of New York City battled through a rousing 20-minute preliminary that went to a draw. Both huskies showed fans plenty of action in the opening bout and were well matched for their meeting.

ACE BACKFIELD MAN ALSO LIKELY TO GIVE PRESIDENTS TROUBLE

Coach To Put Team Through Daily Workouts Preparing for Friday Tilt.

Harding High's Presidents will be facing tough opposition Friday night when the Findlay High Trojans come here for a floodlight game, is the word that is being passed around today among the followers of Marion's scholastic gridders. Backing up the opinion that the Trojans will be no easy match for Harding is the report of Marion scouts who last Friday night watched Findlay trounce Tiffin Columbian, 18 to 6.

Eagle-eyed scouts who were spectators at the Findlay-Tiffin game came back with the report that the Trojans have a superb air attack that clicks to precision behind good line work. Halfback Jim VanFleet, scouts say, is the opposition gridder from whom Harding is likely to receive the most trouble. The fast moving backfield man got away for an 85-yard touchdown run on the return of a Tiffin kick-off in last week's game.

VanFleet Findlay Ace

VanFleet made his long run behind beautiful interference and enabled the Trojans to break a six-all tie and push on to the one-sided triumph. A forward pass, Pekete to Hayes climaxed a 94-yard march for a touchdown in the second period and Dick Osley's interception of a Tiffin pass and his 42-yard gallop accounted for the Trojan's final marker. The battle, featured by spectacular runs, passes and line plunges, saw the Trojans employ just 16 plays in rolling up an 80-yard gain.

Harding's camp yesterday seethed with plenty of fighting football spirit and members of the team all were present for a three-hour workout on the practice field. No injuries of a serious nature were suffered during the encounter with Lima South Friday night and the victory in the battle against a strong opponent has given the Presidents a new type of scrappy aggressiveness.

Last night's workout saw the return to practice of Howard Diehl, 182-pound varsity quarterback, who has been inactive because of an injury in the Delaware Wilis game. Diehl suffered a severe laceration above his left eye and has been on the sidelines for two weeks. His return to active service should bolster considerably the strength of Marion's hard-charging backfield.

Workouts Daily

Coach Carl Cramer will send the Presidents through daily workouts all this week, including a short warm-up session the night preceding the game. Harding's eleven is expected to be at top form for the Findlay invasion and Coach Cramer is hoping to keep his proteges at their peak for the North Central Ohio conference activity, which will open the following week at Ashland.

Plans for Friday night's game are virtually complete, E. Paul Huffman, Harding faculty manager, announced today. A preliminary game, matching the reserve teams of the two schools, has been scheduled for 6 o'clock with the varsity contest immediately following. In the event of inclement weather the prelim will be cancelled, Huffman reported.

Whether the clash between the second-stringers will be played is to be determined at noon on Friday. The uncertainty of holding the preliminary game is the result of efforts to have the field in perfect condition for the varsity clash. If the field is soggy or wet the reserve clubs will cancel their contest so that the turf will be in the best possible shape for the all-important contest.

CUBS WIN FIFTH IN CHICAGO SERIES

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 12 — The Cubs went out to step an old White Sox habit today—that of winning another city baseball title.

Holding three victories to two for the Cubs as the result of their 6 to 4 win over the National Leaguers yesterday at Comiskey Park, the Sox sent righthander Vernon Kennedy after their 15th city baseball championship and their fourth in a row. A win for the Cubs, who will start southpaw Larry French, will change the scene of action from Comiskey Park to the Cubs' home lot, Wrigley Field, for the seventh and final tilt.

THREE TIED FOR OHIO GRID SCORING HONORS

Slovak of Toledo, Metzger of Miami and Lucas of W. R. Have 24.

BY FRITZ HOWELL

Associated Press Writer.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 12—Ohio's gridders who specialize in taking footballs on personally-conducted tours across enemy goal lines are staging a merry race for the individual scoring honors this season, but with the three-eights pole just passed, they are far off the blazing pace set the last two years.

Slovak of Toledo, Metzger of Miami and Lucas of Western Reserve are pacing the pack of 150 scorers with 24 points, each having counted four touchdowns.

After the first three games a year ago, Norm Schoen of Baldwin Wallace, who went on to capture the national scoring laurels with 117 points, had a total of 43. Two years ago Ray Zeh of Western Reserve romped for 64 points in the first three contests, and then finished with 112 and the national honors.

Here's how the leaders stack up:

Player	School	TD	PAT	T.
Slovak, Toledo		4	0	24
Metzger, Miami		4	0	24
Lucas, Western Reserve		4	0	24
Patton, Muskingum		3	3	21

Keller, Xavier		3	0	18
Garcia, Akron		2	0	12

OHIO COLLEGE GRID TEAMS PREPARE FOR LIVELY WEEK-END

Wesleyan To Take on Marshall at Delaware; Reserve Meets Baldwin-Wallace.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 12—Another act in one of Ohio's grandest football dramas is scheduled Saturday as Western Reserve's Red Cats and Baldwin-Wallace's Yellow Jackets steal the sports spotlight with their annual clash at Cleveland.

During the last three years Baldwin-Wallace has dropped exactly three games—the defeats being annual setbacks at the hands of Reserve.

Reserve, on the other hand, has marched through 26 straight games without defeat, only a 7-7 tie with Ohio Wesleyan in 1935 marring the record. Not since Ohio State smothered the Red Cats in 1934 have they tasted defeat, and none of the present team has played in a losing collegiate contest.

With one of the teams due to fall out of the abbreviated list of unbeaten and untied schools Saturday, the contest is easily the "standout" game of the week in the Buckeye realm, despite a host of attractive grid battles in other sections of Ohio.

The Jackets are current leaders of the Ohio Conference with their trio of wins, while the Reserves are not members of any league.

Seven Ohio Conference and two Buckeye loop tilts are scheduled this week-end, although the leader in each league takes on a non-loop foe. The Dayton Fliers, with two straight wins in the Buckeye to annex the top berth, meet John Carroll at Cleveland Friday night.

Marshall 7 to 0 of Miami, takes on Ohio Wesleyan at Delaware in a Buckeye game, while Miami and Ohio University, the 1936 co-champions, clash at Athens in the opening conference start for the Bobcats, who were beaten by Reserve, 7 to 0.

Running the Reserve-Baldwin Wallace game a close second in Ohio interest is the clash between West Virginia and Xavier at Cincinnati Saturday afternoon.

Here's the week-end slate, which is certain to jumble the football set-up and leave but a couple of teams at most in the unblemished class:

Friday: Wittenberg at Marietta, and Ashland at Findlay (Ohio conference); Dayton at John Carroll, Bluffton at Kalamazoo (night games), and Rio Grande at New River State.

Saturday: Marshall at Ohio Wesleyan, and Miami at Ohio University (Buckeye Conference games); Heidelberg at Ohio Northern, Muskingum at Denison, Otterbein at Mount Union, Kent State at Wooster, and Capital at Bowling Green (Ohio Conference games); Baldwin-Wallace at Western Reserve; Case at Cincinnati (night); Wilberforce and Tuskegee at Chicago; Akron at Toledo, Hiram at Allegheny, Oberlin at Hamilton, Bethany at Kenyon, Defiance at St. Marys; West Virginia at Xavier, and Alfred Holbrook at Moorhead State (night).

SNATCHES OF SPORTS

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Oct. 12 — Watch out for Virginia in football next year. Coach Frank Murray (the old Marquette wizard) has 36 all-state high school players on his big 110-man freshman squad. Travis (Ole Hoss) Jackson came out of that Jersey City nightmare with only four gray hairs. Fans wonder why the Atlanta Crackers canned Eddie Moore, who won two pennants and finished second once in his three years as manager. Just what does a guy have to do to hold a job in that league?

The auto license plates of Lou Little, Columbia coach, are numbered "LL-11."

An authoritative Beantown source wires: "You were slightly off key on Maranville today . . . He hasn't a chance to succeed McKechnie as manager of the Bees. Some years back he thumbed his nose at a coaching job here and Bob Quinn has never forgiven him. The Rabbit is down to low "G" with Quinn. Donie Bush is the man on the inside track." . . . Thanks, mister.

Bill Terry didn't bother to walk across the hall to congratulate Joe McCarthy . . . Why? Well, he just didn't bother to. Col. John Reed Kilpatrick, who was forced to fire Jimmy Johnston as matchmaker at Madison Square Garden, called at Johnston's new office the other day and presented Jimmy a handsome gift.

One of the fallacies exploded by the Yanks in the World Series was that they couldn't hit left handers. They knocked Hubbell out of the box once and Melton twice . . . Furthermore, they hit all four of their homers off the three Giant southpaws. Gehrig nicked Hubbell for his. Hoag and DiMaggio found the range on Melton and Lazzeri got his off young Al Smith.

Joe McCarthy will be rewarded with a new contract calling for $40,000 per. Likely to be for five years, too. Colonel Huppert doesn't intend to let any rival baseball outfit out-do him on the old pay-off. . . . Whatever Joe gets, it will not be too much.

Three first and four second place finishes in seven years is a record hard to beat.

BUIVID SIGNS WITH CHICAGO BEARS

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 12 — Ray "Buzz" Buivid, former star Marquette university back and recognized as one of the finest forward passers of the 1936 collegiate season, will make his professional football debut Sunday with the Chicago Bears of the National League.

Buivid signed with the Bears yesterday and will see action against the Chicago Cardinals in a battle opening the professional season here. He won All-American honors last fall.

DAILY PRACTICES HELD BY ST. MARY'S NEXT GAME OCT. 22

Contest at Carey and Two Here with Fostoria Only Games Booked.

Although the next scheduled game for the St. Mary Parochial High gridders is two weeks away the team is going through daily practice sessions at the Silica field. The school's renewal of the grid sport early last spring came at a time when other possible opponents had already completed their schedules and St. Mary officials experienced considerable difficulty in setting up a complete season schedule.

Only two games are definitely on the remainder of the 1937 program for St. Mary, one a visit to Carey High's home field on Oct. 22 and a game here with Fostoria St. Wendelin on Nov. 5. The St. Wendelin game in Marion will be the only home appearance of the St. Mary club, under the present schedule. Efforts are being made, however, to locate possible extra teams with open dates.

Coach Bob Kelly has been drilling his squad on everything from fundamentals to new and intricate offensive plays. With plenty of time for practice on their hands the parochial candidates will continue their daily workouts up until the clash with Carey. The team is free from injuries and all members have been reporting regularly for the workouts.

DELAWARE CO. HORSES WIN

Take Prizes in National Percheron Show Held at Columbus.

A stallion owned by George Dix of Delaware captured first place in the three-year-old class in yesterday's judging at the national Percheron show which is being held in conjunction with the national dairy show at Columbus this week. Another Delaware county stallion, First Attempt, owned by Frank Dewey of Ostrander, took the reserve junior championship.

Grading in the Percheron show went ahead today as did Ayrshire and Holstein judging. Marion county's entry in the Percheron show by the Lawrence farms on the east edge of the city may appear in today's events.

Many Marion county residents are attending the show, the first in Ohio in 20 years. County Farm Agent S. L. Anderson and members of his staff are expected to attend one or more of the sessions.

Initial judging gave national grand championships to Corlaet, Percheron stallion owned by William B. Murray's Bonnie Brae farm at Wellington, O., and Oostie Inkarnation Bussie, four-year-old Holstein cow bred and exhibited by H. C. Oosterhuis of Oconomowoc, Wis.

Corlaet also became senior champion stallion and champion American bred stallion. Oostie added to her laurels with the title of senior champion cow.

Philip Bamberg and Paul Lehtola of South Weymouth, Mass., won the national 4-H dairy demonstration contest over 35 other state teams. Each received $400 in agriculture college scholarships.

The Charles B. Hinton team of Lockbourne won the heavyweight horse pulling contest and the Lawrence Beavers team of Grove City took the lightweight team prize.

Other first honors in the Percheron class included: Labes of Montcalm farms of Phoenixville, Pa., four-year-old stallion; Charles Martel of Conner's Priarie farm, Noblesville, Ind., yearling stallion; and Utelum Laet, owned by H. D. Woodworth of Pottersville, Mich., stallion foal.

SCOUTS PLAN COOKIE SALE

Girls' Troop Plan Project To Raise Funds for Work in City.

One of Marion's most unusual fund-raising drives, the annual Girl Scout cookie sale, will be held Oct. 29-30.

Mrs. Clifford M. Howser, Girl Scout council member in charge of the sale, and Mrs. Helen B Hildreth, new Girl Scout director, met yesterday afternoon in Girl Scout headquarters to discuss details of the sale.

The sale will be on two days this year, to give Hallowe'en party hostesses an opportunity to further the cause of scouting by serving the Girl Scout cookies.

Members of all troops in the city will begin taking orders immediately for delivery on either Friday, Oct. 29, or Saturday, Oct. 30.

Marion bakeries will again cooperate with the council by baking all of the hundreds of dozens of cookies. This year two flavors will be sold, butterscotch and oatmeal.

The cookies will sell for 15 cents a dozen and patrons may order as many dozen as they wish.

The cookie sale is the only public drive made by the Girl Scouts during the year and is a Girl Scout project throughout the year.

All money raised this year will go towards the fund for maintaining a director to carry on the scouting program. Except for the share which the Girl Scouts receive from the annual Boy-Girl Scout maintenance drive, the cookie sale will be the girls' only means of publicly raising money.

Persons who are not reached by the girls and who wish to order cookies may call the Girl Scout headquarters, 2035, or Mrs. Howser, 7169.

Orders will be filled on the day directed, and will be delivered by Girl Scouts.

LIMIT REDUCTION OF TICKET PRICE

Officials of the Harding Memorial association, who decided in their annual meeting yesterday to reduce the admission charge at the Harding home and museum from 25 cents to 10 cents from Oct. 15 to March 15 in an effort to stimulate business there, announced today they had decided to limit the reduction to Marion residents. The charge will remain at 25 cents for tourist visitors, J. Fred Dombaugh, manager of the home, said.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Ruth Tong, 16, daughter of Patrolman and Mrs. Henry B. Tong of 120 North State street, was taken to the City hospital shortly before noon today for observation and medical treatment. Her condition is not believed to be serious.

REPORT GIVEN AT CIRCLE MEETING

Mrs. Zelma Baker, leader, gave a report of the state meeting held last week, when the Circle of Light, King's Daughters, met last night with Mrs. Lenna Long of Powhatan street. The meeting opened with a song by the group and devotions conducted by Mrs. Mabel Williams. Mrs. Gertrude Garver gave the Bible story, "What Peter Saw By the Sea." A Bible questionnaire conducted by Miss Cleo Finley, was won by Mrs. Marguerite Eaton. Mrs. Cathern Larson assisted the hostess in serving lunch. Arrangements were made for a work meeting Oct. 25.

JURY ACQUITS MAN OF CHARGE

Declares Family Made Up Story Because He Objected to Father Divine Cult.

A jury of three women and nine men this afternoon returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of David Elmer Keck, 50-year-old railroad man, charged with rape with consent. The jury returned its verdict at 2.10 after deliberating in common pleas court for two hours and 20 minutes. The verdict was unanimous.

Among points in Keck's defense was the allegation that the charge had been fabricated against him by two relatives in part because he had refused to let his wife join the religious cult of Father Divine, Negro leader.

The case went to the jury at 10:50 a. m. today. The jurors were recessed for lunch from 12 to 1 p. m. then resumed deliberations until they agreed on the verdict of innocent.

The jury received the case this morning after testimony of several defense witnesses, including the defendant, the former Police Capt. Ira Shrock in rebuttal for the state, and Judge Hector S. Young's charge. Prosecuting Attorney Paul D. Michel and Defense Attorney Grant E. Mouser Jr., waived arguments.

Keck, a car inspector living at 431 West Church street, was accused of raping a nine-year-old girl, a relative, with her consent on Dec. 20, 1935, at the family's former home in the northeastern part of the county.

The influence of Father Divine was brought out forcibly in the case yesterday when the girl, now about 11, testified that she is a believer in the Negro cult leader and that her oath, at a witness had been taken to him. She stated she believed Divine is God and Jesus Christ.

She renounced a statement which Attorney George Pluchel on the stand for the defense said he obtained from her last year in which she exonerated Keck and stated the charge had been falsely preferred by two women relatives, who have followed the Divine cult. Pluchel said he obtained the statement while the girl was in a Columbus hospital and that it was witnessed by three disinterested persons.

Keck on the stand today denied the charge and also stated that one of the sources of family trouble was the dispute over Father Divine. He said he refused to let his wife join the cult, which has a huge branch at Columbus which the relatives were said to have visited. It was this that influenced relatives to file the charge against him, he said.

The state's case consisted of the testimony of the girl and of two doctors. The defense occupied the bulk of the trial which began Monday morning, calling approximately 25 witnesses, including friends and relatives, to the stand.

Keck has been free under bond since he was indicted last December by the grand jury. He is living with his wife.

MAJORS MAY BACK MARION BALL TEAM

Bees and Dodgers Consider Franchise Purchase, Loop President Says.

Probability that Marion's team in the Ohio State baseball league will receive the backing of a major league club was seen today in the announcement by Harry Smith, president of the state circuit, that two National league clubs are interested in sponsoring a Marion team.

Bobby Quinn, a former Marion ball player and now president of the Boston Bees, and John Gorman, business manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, both have under consideration the purchase of the franchise here, Smith said during a brief visit in Marion today.

Both of the National league clubs are interested in operating a class D team in Marion and it is quite likely that the team here will have big league support next season, Smith related. During the past season the Marion team was owned solely by the late R. R. Thompson of Toledo. The team is still owned by his estate.

Prexy Smith made known another development in league activity when he mentioned the likelihood that it might be increased to an eight-team circuit. Bucyrus and Mt. Vernon were named as possible locations for additional teams. Last season Marion was the only member of the loop which was not sponsored by a big league team, other members, Mansfield, Tiffin, Fostoria, Fremont and Findlay, all being operated as major league farms.

COUNCIL DELAYS FINAL ACTION ON 1938 BUDGET

come from within the 10-mill limit."

Mayor Smith argued that the pension item should not be included in view of the court controversy and said he felt the amount of money the city would get for next year would not be altered one way or another by including the pension item.

After arguments on both sides had been heard, councilmen turned to the finance committee for a recommendation and Chairman Robert Stief said he wished to get the opinion of City Solicitor Carhart, who had left, before making a recommendation. Council voted to reconvene Thursday night after getting the solicitor's opinion.

Opposes Item

The city solicitor this morning said he is of the opinion the pension levy should not be included in the budget, in view of the court controversy over the status of the pensions.

Mayor Smith's plan to pay off 1936 and 1936 operating bills was explained to council unexpectedly, developing during a discussion of John Powell's request for payment of a $555 back salary judgment he obtained for his services as municipal court clerk. His attorney, Paul Jones, insisted that council take some step toward payment of the judgment, now a month old. Before Mr. Jones arrived at the meeting, City Solicitor Carhart had told council that attorneys for Powell were threatening to seize city property to satisfy the judgment if council failed to pay it. The council finance committee promised a report on the Powell judgment at the next regular council meeting.

Answering the question of financing the Powell judgment, the mayor said a plan is being worked out to satisfy all overdue city bills within the next month, and that the Powell judgment probably could be financed as one of the claims.

He then presented the plan in detail, explaining that it involved the issuance of approximately $70,000 in bonds against delinquent taxes and the sale of the bonds to the city sinking fund trustees at an interest rate of four per cent. "This administration has not issued any bonds, but in this plan the issuance of bonds appears to me not to be objectionable since the interest is not paid out but is merely paid by one division of the city treasury to another," the mayor said.

"It also is the best and virtually the only way we could clean up the city's past due bills. If it is possible to follow the plan, the city will have a clean slate financially with absolutely no operating debts at the end of this year. It also would be the first time in recent years that the city could really say the budget has been balanced, because strict adherence to the budget law includes consideration of all overdue accounts."

He said, after the meeting, that the bulk of the $70,000 in overdue accounts is represented by overdue bills of approximately $31,000 each owed for street lighting and hydrant rentals. "This administration inherited those debts and has been waiting for this opportunity to pay them," he said. "We couldn't have paid them before this time because the city sinking fund trustees will not have enough revenue to make the plan workable until the tax settlement due soon is made. We've been planning on this for several months as the best possible way to pay the bills—they've got to be paid sometime."

Explains Surplus

The reason for the city sinking fund trustees having a sufficient surplus on hand to buy a $70,000 issue was explained this morning by County Auditor Harry V Mounts. He said the $125,500 bond issue against delinquent taxes, issued late in 1935, provided that all delinquent real estate taxes paid to the city must go to the sinking fund trustees until this source has produced enough revenue to pay off the entire issue and interest. However, payments on the issue are due in installments over a 10-year period and can not be paid before they become due. This situation, he pointed out, resulted in a surplus starting to accumulate in the city sinking fund, with restrictions in the bond issue legislation forbidding its use for operating purposes. The sinking fund trustees, however, have a right to invest the surplus, and it is through the exercise of this right that they might purchase the city's proposed new issue against delinquent taxes, he explained.

In his comments on the bond issue, Mayor Smith emphasized that the only 1936 bills in the list of $79,000 consist of hydrant rental bills totaling about $12,000. The administration, he said, regards these bills in the same light as 1935 bills due to the fact the 1936 administration was obliged to pay off more than $9,000 in 1935 salaries. If these figures were offset against each other and a balance of several thousand dollars in the city treasury at the end of 1935 were taken into consideration, it would be shown that the city operated within its budget for the year, he said.

Details of Budget

Individual items in the budget and a comparison with the amount allowed for those purposes this year include the following: police payroll, $32,500, an increase of $546.24; police department incidentals, $2,000, an increase of $1,400; fire department payroll, $61,000, an increase of $5,021.64; fire department incidentals, $3,200, an increase of $625; hospital salaries, $32,900, an increase of $6,180; other hospital expenses, $16,400, a decrease of $3,500; garbage department payroll, $20,300, an increase of $980; other garbage department expenses, $3,700, an increase of $1,370; municipal court salaries, $7,100, an increase of $1,035; health department salaries, $4,200, an increase of $1,320; other health department expenses, $600, an increase of $85; sewage treatment work salaries, $7,800, an increase of $60; other sewage treatment works expenses, $3,000, an increase of $200.

INSTITUTE TO BE CONTINUED

Lutherans Vote To Carry Sunday School Course Through November.

The Marion Lutheran Sunday School Teachers' institute will be continued through November, with sessions on the first four Tuesdays of the month, it was decided by a vote of the 98 persons present last night at the Emanuel Lutheran church.

Dr. G. C. Gast of Capital university continued his lectures on the Pauline Epistles, discussing Colossians and First and Second Thessalonians. Dr. Paul Dobberstein of Prospect, chairman of the institute, delivered a devotional sermon on "Our Savior's Letter to the Church in Smyrna."

The church at Colossae, a city in Phrygia, was founded by Epaphras, a disciple and co-worker of Paul, and in Paul's day had lost much of its former glory, Dr. Gast said.

Purpose Explained

Writing of Colossians by Paul followed a visit by Epaphras to Paul at Rome and was to combat a combination of Greek philosophy and Jewish ceremonialism which was being advocated and angel worship which was being engaged in, according to the speaker. He termed it "a very strong christological epistle."

The purpose of writing First Thessalonians, according to the lecturer, was to correct "some disorders," and the besetting sins of a large commercial city, "lasciviousness and defrauding," which were manifest in the congregation. The second letter, he said, was to rectify errors, among them an expected immediate return of the Lord which was taught in a letter forged in Paul's name. Paul showed that before the Lord's return, certain signs were to appear and that "the lawless one" who opposed God and usurped His place was yet to be revealed. 'He also rebukes the disorderly and praises the obedient,' Dr. Gast added.

Next Monday night Dr. Gast will lecture on First and Second Timothy.

Many sufferers from terrifying lung diseases that hang on and on, threatening at any time to become virulent, have no realization of the fact that chiropractic spinal adjustments will go directly to the seat of this trouble and remove the cause. If the spinal nerves to the lungs are under pressure it is most reasonable to expect lack of tone, weakness and disease. Chiropractic spinal adjustments by freeing the nerves for their work give Nature a chance and Health results.

Cows Conflict With Crestline Girl's Wedding

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 12—Ed Augsburger and Mary Ballinger of Crestline had their wedding planned for the first week in June, but they aren't married yet—all because of cows.

Now the date is set for Oct. 24, or soon after the national dairy show ends.

Miss Ballinger's plans for a wedding at her Crestline home were dashed in June when Augsburger, a former Hamilton resident, was sent to South America with a herd of Ayrshires for the Peruvian government.

When he returned they set another date—then the prospective groom had to tour the state fairs for the Strathglass farms at Port Chester, N. Y. Now it's the dairy show.

They met at Miami university where Augsburger visited his sister. He is an Ohio State university graduate and 28. Miss Ballinger is 23.

"The date's Oct. 24—cows or no cows," she declared today.

WOMEN MAY DECIDE FATE OF MRS. HAHN

CINCINNATI, Oct. 12—Anna Marie Hahn crossed her fingers today and wondered if a jury dominated by women would sit in judgment of her fate on the charge that she fatally poisoned 76-year-old Jacob Wagner.

The 31-year-old German immigrant was apparently in good spirits as she chatted laughingly with the jail matron after the first day under the public gaze of a court room crowd composed mostly of women.

There was no court session today in observance of Columbus day. There were five women and only two men seated tentatively in the first day of the trial which took investigators over a trail of a score of states that ended in Colorado Springs, Colo.

The attractive telegrapher's wife who also stands indicted of the murder of 67-year-old George Gsellman, went cheerfully back to her jail quarters despite frequent reference by the defense to the death penalty.

"Would you be swayed in any way by the fact that the defendant in this case is a woman?" asked Prosecutor Dudley Miller Outcalt of each feminine prospective juror. The answer in each case was no, although two men were excused on the ground they opposed capital punishment.

MEETING AT ASHLEY

G-MEN WIPE OUT BRADY GANGSTERS

sible, was the Sept. 27 killing of Patrolman George Conn near Freeport, O. Another gang — Charles and Frank Bird and James Widmer—escaped jail in Cleveland, O., Sept. 17, and they also have been hunted for the patrolman's murder.

Piqua Clerk Slain

Other Ohio crimes charged to the Brady gang included, besides the slaying of the Piqua grocery clerk during a holdup, a bank robbery at Greenville, and jewelry store robberies at Greenville, Dayton, and Lima.

Today was by no means the first time gangsters have drawn guns against G-men. Invariably they have done so to their sudden sorrow. Seven gangsters have paid with their lives since 1933 for firing upon federal agents, six of them dying from G-men bullets. The other died on the gallows.

Brady has been No. 1 man on the federal "wanted" list since a year ago yesterday when, with the same two companions who were with him today, he escaped jail at Greenfield, Ind. Prices of $500 were placed by the department of justice on the head of each man.

As many as 20 men at a time have hunted the Indiana desperadoes.

It was only a few months ago that J. Edgar Hoover, head G-man, stated that only eight of his men had been killed by gunfire in the long war against gangsters and kidnapers, and that in the same period—covering virtually the entire life of the federal bureau of investigation under his regime — the G-men had made more than 11,000 arrests.

Only 3 Agents Shot

Only three agents have been shot, according to Hoover, "in anything like public places."

The most recent gun battle in which the G-men got their man occurred last Dec. 15 at New York, when they shot it out with Harry Brunette who surrendered only after his wife had been slightly wounded. Brunette is now serving a life sentence under the Lindbergh kidnap law.

In the year long hunt for the Brady gang, the federal detectives have been on several "hot" trails, only to miss their quarry, sometimes merely by minutes.

A trap was set for the Brady mobsters in Baltimore last Aug. 11 when officers heard the gang was to get a delivery of guns and ammunition at a downtown office building. Raiding the building, the officers found more than 1,000 rounds of machine gun ammunition, four hand grenades, automatic pistol clips, a mask, and the belt and holster of the Indiana state trooper, Paul Minneman, who had been killed last May from ambush after the robbery of a Goodland, Ind., bank.

Baltimore police, closing in on the Brady men, were fired upon and Brady and the others escaped when their bullets disabled the pursuing car of the policemen.

When Brady, Shaffer and Dalhover escaped jail at Greenfield they were being held for the murder of Police Sergeant Richard Rivers of Indianapolis.

The Brady gang cleanup left only two well organized gangs of bank robbers at large in the nation.

The justice department has offered $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest of Hugh Gant and Alva Dewey Hunt, leaders of the Hunt-Gant gang in the south.

Federal agents also are seeking the Birt gang, who escaped from Cuyahoga county jail Cleveland, Sept. 22

Gant and Hunt, brothers-in-law, head a group of gunmen who were led until 1933 by Riley Gant, Hugh's brother. Riley was killed in August, 1933, in a store holdup at Penney Farms, Fla.

Indictments are pending at Gainesville, Fla., against Hugh Gant and Hunt, charging them with a $4,000 robbery of the Dixie County State bank, Cross City, Fla., Jan. 14, 1936.

Charles Bird and Widmer were arrested by Cleveland Heights, O., police July 29, during the robbery of a branch of the Cleveland Heights Central National bank. Frank was arrested the same day and the three placed in the Cuyahoga county jail

Sept. 22 the three men and Theodore Slapak, facing charges in connection with the slaying of a policeman, escaped. While fleeing in a commandeered automobile they fatally injured a pedestrian, Mrs. Paul Tober Slapak was recaptured after being wounded by police.

Other public enemies high on the G-men's list include the kidnapers of Charles Matson, later found dead, and the kidnapers of Mrs. Alice Parsons and Charles S. Ross, both of whom still are missing.

Mother Wishes He Were Killed

By The Associated Press

MADISON, Ind., Oct. 12—Mrs. John Craig of Madison, told today by a newspaper man that her son, James Dalhover, had been wounded in Bangor, Me., in a gun fight in which two fellow mobsters were killed, expressed regret that he escaped death.

"It's too bad he wasn't killed suddenly like the rest of them," said Mrs. Craig. The gangster's mother then fainted.

Craig said Mrs. Craig had received no word from her son since his escape from jail at Greenfield, Ind. in April, 1936.

LEWIS INDIFFERENT TO A.F.L. OUSTER PLAN

By The Associated Press

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 12—John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chairman, heard with eager but amused interest today that the A. F. L. convention had authorized the ouster of his unions. He reserved comment.

Pending a definite statement on the federation's action by the official conference here of heads of his 32 affiliated unions, Lewis would only recall his Sunday night statement that the C. I. O. already considers itself out of the fold of William Green, A. F. L. president and Lewis' bitter foe.

"Our attitude is one of complete indifference," he said then. "We are separate and apart."

Lewis smiled when he learned Green had told the federation's convention at Denver that he stood ready to "welcome" and "embrace" any C. I. O. organization which "comes to the door" in response to an appeal to "come back home."

Lewis said the resolutions committee of the C. I. O. strategy conference probably would "make a report" on this subject today or tomorrow.

PRESIDENT SATIRIZED BY COHAN COMEDY

plain to the "President' how he had balanced the Kansas budget

A catchy tune called "off the record" — music and lyrics by Richard Rogers and Lorenz Hart —was the vehicle for many of Cohan's most successful sallies

The first - night audience chuckled particularly at these verses:

"I sit up in my bedroom,
Reading books like Silas Marner—
I'd read Sears Roebuck catalogues
To get away from Garner.

"My messages to congress
Are a lot of boola boola;
I'm not so fond of Bankhead,
But I'd like to meet Tallulah."

A major laugh came when the President, at a cabinet session, turned to Attorney General Cummings and ordered:

"Cummings, take down a law!"

There was another when the President avowed:

"I'm very fond of Eleanor,
But I never read her column."

No mention was made of the Justice Black controversy until the last act, when nine Black-robed "justices" danced gayly across the stage and Chief Justice Hughes warned the ninth man in line:

"Hurry up, Justice Black. Remember, you've got to go on the air at 7:30 and do a little more explaining."

The satire apparently aroused no partisan resentment, and cries of "speech! speech!" rewarded Cohan—a very realistic looking Roosevelt—at the closing curtain. The veteran actor, producer and playwright, who has been on the stage since he made his debut in 1888 at the age of 10, thanked his audience briefly.

GIRL'S STORY SPURS DEGENERATE HUNT

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 12—A 10-year-old girl's report that she barely escaped from a man resembling the attacker of her neighbor and schoolmate, Betty Jane Rush, also 10, spurred a special detective squad of four today in its hunt for a sex degenerate.

Betty Jane, recovering from the six-hour ordeal of being dragged to a dark basement and assaulted several times, spent yesterday and today at police headquarters viewing suspects and shuffling through photographs in an effort to identify her attacker.

Widow Not Sorry Gangster Is Slain

By The Associated Press

BALTIMORE, Oct. 12—Minnie Raimondo is "not sorry" she was widowed today by police bullets which killed Clarence Lee Shaffer Jr., in Bangor, Me.

Shaffer and Alfred Brady, leader of the Brady gang, were killed. James Dalhover, who married Mary Raimondo, Minnie's sister, was wounded.

"I am not sorry," said Minnie, who married Shaffer under the alias of Riley. "I am glad they have been caught. Now I know where they are.

"We were afraid they would come back some day.

"For the first few nights (after the gang fled Baltimore) we were afraid they would come back but we finally got used to it."

The girl said she would not claim Shaffer's body and revealed she may have been the one who led federal agents to the gang.

"I thought they would be caught in Maine because they often said they would go to Maine sometime," she said. "We told police that they often frequented Maine."

"I don't feel very sorry about it," Mary said. "They had it coming to them. They ought to get it after all the trouble we went through.

"In one way, I guess, I am a little sorry after all," she added "But it had to happen sooner or later."

The first tip in months of the whereabouts of the Brady gang, came last Aug. 7, when Brady, Shaffer and Dalhover escaped during a gun battle with two patrolmen who sought to question them as automobile thieves. The policemen were not hit, but their cruiser was disabled.

The marriages of Shaffer and Dalhover became known as police launched a wide search for the gunmen. Police found the trio had lived here for months, making bank-robbing forays into Indiana.

Dillinger escaped from Crown Point, and later was shot to death by federal agents in Chicago.

BRIDGE WORK MOVES AHEAD

Progress Reported by Engineer on County Project at King's Mills.

Work of WPA on reconstruction of King's Mills bridge in Richland township is virtually completed, County Engineer Carl H. Tozzer informed county commissioners yesterday in a letter suggesting the county make plans for installation of the actual bridgework.

Mr. Tozzer said he has prepared an estimate of $6,400 as the cost for erecting the old Newman's bridge on the new WPA abutments at King's Mills, dismantling the present bridge and hauling it to the county yards.

The work of WPA consisted of construction of new concrete abutments and filling in with some 3,400 cubic yards of dirt and stone a dip in St. James road at the approach to the bridge. The workers were hampered soon after they started in May by high waters which did some damage to the abutments, the engineer's office stated.

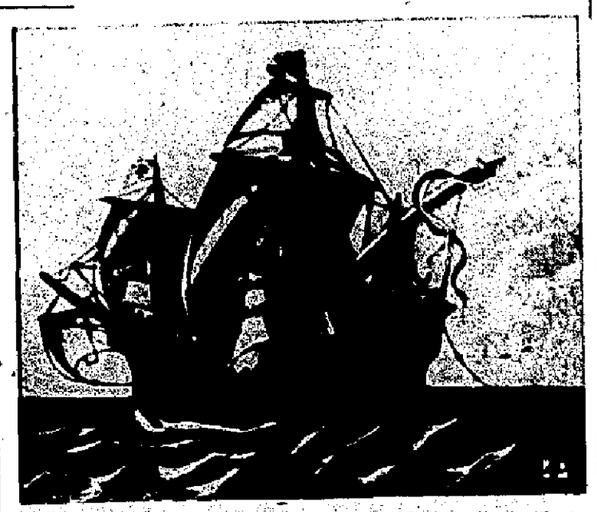
The old bridge has not been torn down as yet, the engineer's office stated, indicating that approval of the commissioners is necessary.

If and when completed the transfer of the bridges will correct what is regarded by officials as a hazardous condition. The present structure is among the oldest in the county and while not unsafe is not as strong as it might be, officials said.

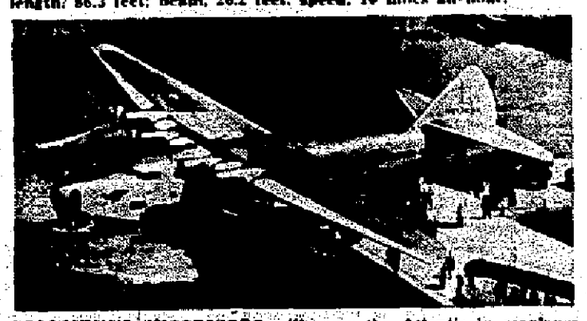
The fill-in of St. James road was done to avoid the annual flooding of the highway in the spring. Due to the dip in the road, well below the bridge level, water generally covered the road during the high water season.

If Columbus Could Have Waited 445 Years

AIR LINE VS. WAVES. Thou's the flying clippers will start off from Lisbon, which isn't so far from Columbus' hopping-off port of Palos, they will speed straight to their marks, all along the route in contrast to the wavering course the Genoese navigator followed.



CHRISTOPHER'S FLAGSHIP was this plodding craft, the Santa Maria. Two similar ships conveyed this 15th century windjammer, which had these approximate specifications: Weight, 120 tons; length, 86.3 feet; beam, 26.2 feet; speed, 10 miles an hour.



COLUMBUS'S SUCCESSORS will cross the Atlantic in seaplanes like this one, building for Pan American Airways. Here are some figures: Gross weight, 42½ tons, allowing for 50 passengers and 2½ tons of freight; hull, 109 feet long; wingspread, 152 feet; top speed, 200 miles an hour.

IT TOOK Christopher Columbus 71 nerve-trying days on his first trip across the Atlantic—the one on which he discovered America on Oct. 12 1492.

If he could have waited 445 years, until now, he could have made it in 24 hours—just 70 days difference. That's the schedule which survey flights have now worked out for giant flying boats to follow when regular transportation service starts, perhaps next summer.

THE CHARACTERS:

Nina, a nice girl with flaxen hair.

Honey, Nina's gay, young youthful mother, has brought home a new husband.

Richard, Nina's stepfather, charming, poised, dark-haired well-tailored and Honey's age by 10 years.

David, a young artist who met Nina at a party he crashed. He has copper hair and an easy-going manner.

Cordelia is Nina's closest friend.

CHAPTER EIGHT

Nina's Plan To Move

ON THE morning of the day the honeymooners were to return Nina woke with a little-girl feeling of excitement, that was all out of proportion for even such an exciting day. She was down for breakfast at 7:30, and Bridget looked actually shocked at such an unusual happening.

Just as when they had gone away, the house was a mass of flowers, lots of them from Nina.

Mrs. Carrie Van Alstyne—Aunt Carrie, as Nina called her—had sent a hideously expensive, and equally hideous looking "piece," on a wire stand. There were red, and yellow roses in hard masses, and a red satin ribbon with "welcome" on it in gold letters.

Aunt Carrie was about as close to Honey, as Cordelia was to Nina ... a grand person, with a great sense of humor. Cordelia called her "Horseface," and it was appropriate.

When the newlyweds got off the train, Nina thought she had never seen her mother looking better. And when Richard stepped from the platform, Nina felt a distinct shock at being so glad to see him ... not critical, not curious ... just glad to see him.

She kissed his cheek and it felt hard and smooth, and it smelt faintly of some expensive shaving soap. Nice.

In the taxi, he sat in the middle, and drew Nina's arm through his. It felt lean and muscular.

At home in the hall Honey cried "Heaven! Look what Carrie has sent!"

And Richard showed immediately that he was one of them, by not taking the monstrosity seriously, for a moment.

Glimpses of the new Honey showed up in flashes of a seriousness that was very sweet, but she had lost none of her youth and gaiety, because of it. Nina felt so happy that it hurt almost.

She was not surprised at Honey's radiance, for Richard was probably the most perfect lover Nina had ever seen or imagined. It was his—restraint, she thought, more than anything else, that was so frightfully touching. Little things, little, accomplished caresses.

Nina was amused and rather shocked to find herself thinking of two things: that he could have reached this finished state of artistry only through long experience, and that if he were this good in front of her ... what must he be like, alone?

They got quit high, that first night at dinner, on several bottles of the Pol Roget, dix, neuf cent onze, from the cellar, and all the questions about the future that Nina had had in her mind to ask, were forgotten.

Two Voices

In the past two weeks, she had wondered a good deal where Honey and Richard were going to live; where she would. She couldn't imagine that a new husband would just quietly slip into his wife's house and settle down there, complacently. And Honey would certainly want to start a new life in a new home.... A place to fuss over, and arrange her things in differently. Nina had even thought of a friend's tiny three-room apartment, which she knew was for rent, for herself. Honey would probably take the three servants, but a part-time maid would be enough for her.

But as the days slipped by, no mention was made of anybody moving, any changes of any sort being made. As far as she could make out, Richard had been living about in his various clubs, and beyond personal articles—like his silver toilet set, guns, golf clubs and an enormous wardrobe—he had no belongings at all, apparently. He just moved in. It was as simple as that.

Nina thought, "Well then, I'm simply going to move out." Because, in spite of the fact that she adored them both (she found herself using Honey's phrase), she thought it was a very funny arrangement, and no place for a grown-up daughter to be hanging around. So she told her mother.

"You know, darling, I think I'll get a try place of my own, somewhere nearby, because we'll want to see each other all the time, but I do feel sort of three-a-cornered, with you newlyweds."

But Honey's little round pink face puckered up pitifully. "I won't allow it, that's all. How old are you? Can I still exert parental authority? Why, I'm not even going to let you get married and leave me—ever. That's how much I want you with me. You can't go."

It was no use to argue with her. After a day or two had gone by, Nina spoke to her stepfather about it.

Now it was Richard with whom she had breakfast every morning, and she supposed it was so particularly nice, because she had been eating alone these last two years.

Nina was not one of the people who are grumpy in the mornings—neither was he, and it was fun to be taking especial care over the spun sugar halo of your hair again, and the selection of your pajamas, because you knew you were going to be seen and appreciated. For Richard did appreciate her ... and told her so.

On the morning that she had decided to speak to him about moving away, he told her again, emphatically:

"It's marvelous, you know, having breakfast every morning with someone who is so entirely—decorative. Gets the day off to such a splendid start. Have I told you before?"

"You did, when I wore my new American Beauty."

She stopped, blushing to think that she had remembered the very day and everything.

"That was Sunday."

And she blushed again—with pleasure this time, to think that he had remembered.

She said, quickly: "There's something I've been wanting to speak to you about. I talked with Honey, but she only said 'No' as I rather expected she would. I'd like a tiny apartment of my own, Richard." She fibbed a little. "I've wanted one—to fuss over, you know—for ages, but naturally I couldn't leave Honey alone. Now, though, I can. Would you speak to her?"

He was eating grapes in the most marvellously efficient and fastidious manner.

He paused with his brown hand in mid-air, and looked at her steadily. There was amusement, and a terrifying piercing quality in his dark eyes.

Nina's heart was doing a tap dance against her ribs.

"I will not," he said, calmly.

"I didn't intend to get you involved in a family argument, if that's what you're afraid of."

And he said, "It isn't. I'm afraid that she might say: 'All right. Go ahead.'"

The tap dance turned into an elaborate routine. She realized with sudden conviction, that she hadn't ever really wanted to go, at all; and she supposed the relief of not having to was what was affecting her so strangely.

She said: "Expound your grape technique, will you Richard?" I am confounded and envious."

He showed her how he removed the seeds of the preceding grape neatly hidden in the skin of the current one.

They talked, very gravely for some minutes about grapes.

Aunt Carrie (Horseface) Van Alstyne was holding forth in front of the living room fireplace.

She was telling stories on Honey, and the eight or ten people gathered about her were convulsed with laughter.

It was Thanksgiving afternoon and Nina was feeling a little sick from her enormous midday meal ... Mushroom soup, and turkey, of course, with rich chestnut dressing, cranberry sauce, and old Margaret's famous candied sweet potatoes, that were really more candy than potato; then more turkey again ... Nina sighed.

She signaled her stepfather.

"I think I'll walk up Fifth avenue a ways, Richard, or I shall never be able to face food tonight. I'm far from well."

She got on her things and went out into the stimulating November air. Lord, it felt good! She struck out briskly and sniffed great invigorating sniffs.

At 86th street, on the park side of the avenue, she ran into Betty Halliday and her brother.

"Don't tell us. We're out doing the same thing. Are you going to the Fenwicks tonight, Nina?"

"If I recover sufficiently."

A small group of urchins dressed in bedraggled grown-up clothes, their faces painted grotesquely, gathered round a taxi that had drawn up to the curb.

"How about a dime, mister ...?"

Richard Challoner stepped out, laughing.

"Hi, Nina! I thought I'd catch you ..."

He stopped to pay the driver and then threw a coin high up into the air. The urchins leapt for it.

Betty Halliday's brother whistled, softly.

"So they even follow you through the streets, eh, Nina? Who's the new heart throb?"

And Nina felt the hot blood rushing to her cheeks as she said, "Hush, you idiot. That's my stepfather."

"Oh-o! Sorry."

A flash of danger shows Nina the truth, tomorrow.

Lillian Assures Madge Once More That She'll Handle Edith's Request.

THERE was a diffidence in Katherine's voice as she asked me my opinion of making the trip down to the farm in one day. It told me again without words that she had understood my mean, if involuntary and quickly suppressed, jealousy of her care for my baby daughter.

It was impossible, of course, for me to recognize or acknowledge the intangible issue between us. All I could do was to make all the amends possible by my words and manner.

I took her by the shoulders, held her off for a second, smiling at her, then kissed her warmly.

"Of course I 'think best' of whatever plan you make," I said heartily. "You know you're the sole arbiter of the children's regime."

"You're a darling," Katherine said, then added anxiously, "will you be home when I get there? I'm perfectly willing to take over the reins of office, but I sure want you at hand when they're transferred."

"I'll be there," I promised her, although I did not exactly see how I was going to manage getting away from Mary and the apartment. Then the solution flashed upon me.

Rehearsals of my play would not begin for two weeks after I went into the apartment. I simply would bring Mary out to the farm with me, for the day of Katherine's homecoming with the children, and take upon my shoulders Philip Veritzen's probable wrath if he should discover the departure of Mary from the luxurious cell—I could give it no other name—in which he proposed to incarcerate her during rehearsals.

"And so will I," Lillian said, "as soon as I get my daughter off for college. Doesn't that sound scrumptuous? I ought to be tickled pink, but all I'm thinking is that she's grown-up, no longer my baby."

There was something mournful in her voice, and I felt that this sadness, common to most mothers when sending their adored daughters away to college, was especially poignant with Lillian because of those early years when she had been compelled to live apart from her child. She had been cheated out of so much time with her darling that she unconsciously begrudged every hour Marion spent away from her.

But she was heroic in disguising her feeling from her daughter, in order not to wound her tender, loving heart of the girl.

"She'll always be your baby," I told her emphatically. "But don't forget to come to the farm the minute you can."

"I wouldn't miss the circus for anything," she said with a grin and a sudden change of mood. "I'm sure of one thing. I don't envy you your job setting the stage for entertaining royalty, and then going into the city to play chaperone to a lovelorn niece."

"Not so lovelorn," I smiled. "She's immensely thrilled by her new venture, and with Olina safe from mischief at the farm, she won't have anything much to worry her."

"Except Phil Veritzen's cussedness," Lillian said tartly, "but that, like the poor, is always with us. But I see Dicky in the offing with the kids hanging on him. He'll be over in a minute, raring to go, so we'd better cut our fond farewell short."

She lowered her voice to a mere murmur, keeping a wary eye on Dicky as she spoke.

"Don't worry about Ede or any of her works," she adjured me. "I'll attend to her letter and her request. If you have any further message from her, don't answer it, send it to me. But I don't think you'll be bothered with her. That little holy blackmail I outlined to you ought to do the trick."

I had no chance to reply, for Dicky and the children were too near. But after all the goodbys and speeding southward, Lillian's heartening assurance that I need not worry about Edith Fairfax wrapped my heart in comforting warmth.

BUST THAT COLD WIDE OPEN

Don't Merely Humor It!

Deal with a cold in earnest. Deal with it in seriousness.

A cold is too fraught with danger to be taken lightly. Many a case of flu and pneumonia has started with nothing more than a "common cold."

Treat a cold for what it is—an internal infection. Therefore, internal treatment.

Treat a cold with a preparation made for colds and not a "cure-all."

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets) are what you want.

They are made expressly for the treatment of colds and not for all kinds of ailments.

They are internal in effect and do four important things.

First, they open the bowels.

Second, they check the infection in the system.

Third, they relieve the headache and fever.

Fourth, they tone the system and help fortify against further attack.

Bromo Quinine tablets are a proven preparation. They have been on the market over 40 years and are the world's largest-selling cold tablet.

Bromo Quinine tablets now come sugar-coated as well as plain. Both kinds are sold by all druggists, a few cents a box.

When you feel a cold coming on—don't wait—don't procrastinate—but go right to your druggist and get a package of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets).

Say "No" to substitutes!

Marion Co. Farm Leaders On Rural Life Broadcast

Talks On Hybrid Corn

... minute program opened with Mr. Kile explaining the steady growth of favor of hybrid corn in the county. He said this year 115 farmers had some of the mixed variety and that 350 have ordered seed for next year. He pointed out how hybrid corn planted alongside the normal variety will gave yields from 10 to 35 per cent higher, that hybrids will stand up firmly against winds that flatten usual corn. This subject was taken as an example of progressive farm practices

Mr. McCurdy next described the work of 4-H clubs in the county, pointing out how the interest has increased from 330 members with 65 per cent completing projects in 1934 to 390 with 85 per cent completing this year He said he has found that boys and girls who have projects are usually more dependable than others, that they have a safe outlet for their energies and valuable training for the future.

The place of vocational agriculture and farming clubs in the county was the subject of Mr. Schmidt's talk. He said there are seven vocational departments in the county and that each has a future farmer department, that 90 per cent of farm boys take it in school.

Farm Clubs Popular

A highlight of his talk was the statement that farm boys are gaining the title of gentlemen of the soil rather than hayseeds, through their modern outlook The young men's farming clubs here have an enrollment of 125 men between the ages of 16 and 35 for the study of agriculture, he said

An interesting discussion was added by Mr. Davidson on the REA work which will be completed this fall in the county. He said that in the past only 30 per cent of the farm homes, approximately 600, had light, and under the REA there will be 1,800 Workers are installing 590 miles of wire on poles, 375 miles in homes, 30,000 bulbs. He said that recently at a series of meetings 50 per cent of the farm people attending indicated they will purchase 115 new radios, 48 new ranges, 94 refrigerators, water machinery, and scores of other appliances

Mr. Sleeth pointed out a new concept of "rehabilitation" which he said is often understood to mean "getting back to a former status" He commented that most people would rather not get back to where they were, but would move ahead. He urged the cooperation of all farm agencies in raising the standard of farm life for those who have fallen.

Last night's program was one of a series being staged by WOSU for counties in the state.

The pastor, Rev. Harry G. Deeds, has invited the public to attend. Special music is presented at each service.

Worthy Opponent

OGDEN MILLS, his political fate now sealed forever by untimely death, had turned all his energy during the last few years to a fight against what he thoroughly believed were the irreconcilable objectives of the new deal. "We can have a free country or a socialistic one," he said. "We cannot have both. Our economic system cannot be half free and half socialistic."

When congressmen still were approving new deal bills without reading them, Mr. Mills was warning against abdication of democratic rights. "Individual liberty 'as we have understood it,'" he warned, "cannot hope to survive the transformation of a government of strictly limited authority into one of unlimited power over the life of the individual citizen."

He had spent a third of a century in politics, reaching a climax when he ran the U. S. treasury, during and after Andrew Mellon's secretaryship. He was about as close to a political career man as this country can boast. He served the public because he enjoyed it, not because he needed a job. A brilliant thinker and a persuasive speaker and writer, he believed it was his duty to explain his principles, even when they were out of style.

He was a worthy opponent because he used facts, not prejudices, as his weapons. He thought new dealers were in error, but he never impugned their motives. He was sure the results of their policies would be bad, but he never implied that the personalities responsible for them were not earnest and honest. The death of such a man is a direct loss to both major parties, for they had equal need of his clear vision. What higher tribute could be paid to a modern American than the following sentences, explaining what Ogden Mills believed was the only way to cure unemployment—increase production. He said:

"The way to increase production is to stimulate buying by giving the consumer the benefit of lower prices for finished products, and simultaneously to create conditions which will invite the flow of capital into producers' goods or heavy industries, thus increasing current purchasing power by transforming savings into wages."

Sensible new era evangelists now admit reluctantly that men like Ogden Mills are guilty of no worse sin than realism. Yet, when Mr. Mills began to argue with them, they were insisting that government should restrict production, raise costs and prices and hamper the flow of capital by destroying confidence in the capitalist system. Whether Ogden Mills or the country or the force of circumstances caused them to change their minds, credit is due the handful of independent men who insisted on thinking straight when it was the fashion to have visions. Mr. Mills was one of the first to say what he thought and certainly one of the ablest.

Three, Not One.

BEFORE SENDING the Giants to the minor leagues and making the next world series a playoff between the Yankees and whoever finishes second in the American league, a few pausing thoughts are in order.

The Giants finished only three games ahead of second place in their league. They were lucky to come out ahead. The Yankees finished 13 games ahead of second in their league and were lucky they didn't sew up the race weeks before they went into a slump that kept interest alive.

Before the series started, wise heads warned the Yankees might have a four game slump and lose, accidentally. As things turned out, the Giants went into a slump, and the Yankees were conceded to be so much of a standout that they couldn't lose unless something happened to them.

There's nothing startling about that, nor is it a reflection on what is believed to be major league baseball in the National league. As all American league players and fans know, the Yankees are in a league by themselves, with the rest of the American league probably a pretty good match for all of the National league.

Time Limit.

THE KENTUCKY court of appeals has added one more complication to the proposed child labor amendment by ruling that it no longer is legally before the people. Its conclusions are that a state having once acted on a proposed amendment can not thereafter change its vote without a resubmission of the question by congress. The child labor amendment, the court believes, was withdrawn from further consideration when more than one-fourth of the states had rejected it.

This is the old argument of "reasonable time." The child labor amendment was submitted in June, 1924. In the case of the 18th, 20th and 21st amendments, congress set a time limit of seven years for ratification. On that basis the child labor amendment ceased to be before the people six years ago. Certainly there is something absurd in the many reversals of judgment by state legislatures on the question.

Taking its cue from the Kentucky ruling, the country could deal more logically with the question by starting over again with a clean slate, setting a definite time limit for ratification.

Today And Tomorrow

Lippmann Returns from Europe Where He Sought To Learn Whether Peace Is Possible.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

NEW YORK, Oct. 12—Though I have just come back from six weeks in Europe, I am not heavily laden with inside information on the state of the world. Perhaps I was inordinately lazy and so spent more time sitting on the sidewalks in front of French cafes than waiting in the antechambers of the great. On several grounds, however, this want of professional diligence can, I think, be justified. For one thing the more persons one talks to in Europe the more evident it is that no one knows what is going to happen; for another, an American who goes abroad for a few weeks is deluding himself if he thinks he can study the European situation.

Walter Lippmann

If he is an ordinary tourist his knowledge is almost certain to be the residue of all his feelings about railroad trains and hotels, customs guards, waiters, chambermaids, the weather, the food he ate and how he digested it, the news in the Paris edition of the Herald Tribune and what the English-speaking natives told him. If he is a newspaper man, or some personage whom officials feel they have to see because they cannot escape him, he may get a sense of the atmosphere of the moment, and some things which he knew in the abstract may become concrete to him. But he must not take such impressions too seriously; these interviews are intended to please him rather than enlighten him, and only once in a while, when the visiting personage is known to have all the right prejudices, will the official tell him anything that he could not have known by reading the newspapers.

For the most part, he learns less, and is far less able to judge its value, than is already fully known to the corps of correspondents in the principal capitals. So a very great deal of what is styled a first-hand study of European conditions when the traveler reaches New York consists in having picked the brains of the American correspondents over there. For years Walter Duranty created experts on the Russian Soviets by eating meals with Americans who had come to Moscow.

So all I can say for myself is that I, too, have talked with correspondents and editors, have lunched with them, drunk beer with them and smoked too many cigarettes with them, and that I met a fair number of diplomats, politicians, bankers and labor leaders. What I learned proved to be extraordinarily like that which I expected to learn. It generally is. For in this respect at least most of us are like Sir Thomas Browne when he "boasted that his sympathies were universal, that "all places, all airs, make unto me one Country" and then added with engaging candor, "I am in England every where, and under any Meridian."

Sought One Answer

I tried while I was abroad to find some kind of answer which I could believe in to the question: What are the prospects for peace or war? It is not an easy question; in the world today there can be no simple answer. Before 1914 nations could be said to be either at peace or at war with one another. But that clear distinction no longer exists. Just as China and Japan are still legally at peace though their troops are fighting, so in all the critical places of the Old World there exists a condition which is not war and yet is certainly not peace.

There are Russian ambassadors in Rome and in Berlin; but Italian and German ships have been bombed by Russian planes and Russian ships have been sunk by Italian torpedoes. France and Italy are at peace; but in French Africa there is a subversive agitation. Britain and Italy are at peace; but a powerful propaganda is at work to raise the Arab world against Britain, and certainly the Italians sincerely believe that Britain continues to foment and support rebellion in their Ethiopian empire.

That is why the question is not simple. For though the nations are not at peace they are not totally at war, and the real question is how much war, or rather how much more war, there is likely to be.

Technically at Peace

It might be said, I suppose, that Europe may still be considered to be at peace as long as there is no general mobilization followed by the total conflict of all the armed forces. For by our rather modest criteria of peace, A. D. 1937, what is going on in Spain, in the Mediterranean, in Central Europe, in Africa and the Near East is no

Lawrence Points Out Only Way People Can Demand Removal of Black from Court.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—If the people of the United States want Hugo Black removed from the supreme court of the United States, they can obtain their wish in only one way. It is by petitioning their senator to vote for a resolution directing that court proceedings be begun with a view to establishing whether Mr. Black holds his position today lawfully.

Such proceedings, known as "quo warranto," can be instituted by the senate itself and, therefore, would not fall under the objection which the supreme court has just expressed against the petition of Albert Levitt on the ground that he was not a sufficiently "interested" party.

Denial of the Levitt petition was fully expected on all sides, and, while the issue may be raised again in other ways by counsel before the court, there is no certain way except by "quo warranto" proceedings to insure a review of the whole matter by the supreme court itself.

The reason for such a statement is that the supreme court already has accepted the "quo warranto" method of procedure when an issue was raised as to the right of George Otis Smith to serve as a member of the federal power commission in 1931. In that case, the senate had confirmed Mr. Smith just before the Christmas holidays, and, during that period, the press was filled with charges about Mr. Smith's views on the power question which caused a number of members of the senate to wish to reconsider their confirmation. A technical excuse was used as a means of trying to get Mr. Smith removed from office. It was contended that the senate had not finished the confirmation process when it adjourned.

The supreme court held that the confirmation had been fully completed and refused to dislodge Mr. Smith, but what is important as a precedent is the procedure by which the case went up before the supreme court from the lower courts, even where no constitutional issue was involved.

Consent of Attorney General

The statute requires that "quo warranto" proceedings must be with the consent of the attorney general, but the department of justice was in the same position then of defending the appointee of a Republican president as it would be today if confronted by a request that it consent to "quo warranto" proceedings with reference to an appointment made by a Democratic president. The department of justice consented out of deference to a resolution passed by a majority of the senate, and, because the department did not share the senate's view, it was invited by the attorney general that the senate provide its own counsel. As a matter of fact, the attorney general actually appeared in the proceedings as fighting against the senate's point of view.

Here is a statement made at the time to the court by Attorney General William D. Mitchell:

"This proceeding could only be maintained in the name of the United States with the consent and on the relation of an official of the department of justice. As the officials of the department of justice were already committed by an opinion of the attorney general to a conclusion adverse to the position taken by the senate, consent to the institution of this proceeding was given on condition that the senate would employ its own counsel. This explains why officials of the department appear as amici curiae."

The phrase "amici curiae" is a legal characterization of a party given leave by the court to intervene in a proceeding as so-called "friends of the court," and it means that the department of justice's lawyers, Solicitor General Thomas Thacher and Erwin N. Griswold, appeared in the case on the side of the appointee, George Otis Smith.

When the lower court refused to dislodge Mr. Smith, the case was promptly carried to the supreme court of the United States, where Justice Brandeis delivered the unanimous opinion of the court, saying in part:

"This petition, in the name of the United States, for a writ of quo warranto was filed in the supreme court of the District of Columbia, on relation of the district attorney, in deference to the desire of the United States senate to have presented for judicial decision the question of whether George Otis Smith holds lawfully the office of member and chairman of the federal power commission. The case was heard upon the petition and answer. On December 22, 1931, the trial court entered judgment denying the petition. An appeal was promptly taken to the court of appeals of the district. That court certified a question pursuant to Sec. 239 of the judicial code. This court granted joint motions of the parties to bring up the entire record and to advance the cause."

Proper Procedure

The foregoing is the exact outline of the proper procedure to follow in the event that the senate desires to question Mr. Black's right to hold his present position.

So far as the senate is concerned, any member who voted to reject the nomination of Mr. Black may consistently introduce the resolution for "quo warranto" proceedings, and might declare that the question of constitutional eligibility should be decided now by the supreme court and that the only way to get it decided is by the proceedings in question.

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Wednesday, Oct. 12, 1927.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dreher of Superior street.

Dr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Sutherland of Sargent street were on a week's trip to Toledo, Detroit and Canada.

Mrs Mathew Ginder was hostess to the Superba club at her home on Silver street.

Miss Iona Richards entertained the E. P. Y. club at her home on West Farming street complimenting Miss Doris Chamberlain who was to leave Saturday for San Bernardino, Calif., where she was to be the bride of Leroy Behner, a former Marion man.

The Sorosis club was entertained by Mrs. Elmer J. Flach at her home on Cleveland avenue.

Miss Louise E. Muntsinger, 69, died in the home on Pearl street where she was born and passed her entire life.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

It was Friday, Oct. 12, 1917.

British forces under Field Marshal Haig launched their second gigantic drive against the Germans on the west Flanders front within four days. The British swept forward to a new victory northwest of Ypres, completing their conquest of the famous Passchendaele ridge. It was reported that breaking the German grip upon the Belgian coast where they maintained important submarine bases loomed nearer than ever.

Mayor Andrew J. Sautter, faced with a threatened coal shortage in the city said, "Unless the situation is relieved by tomorrow, I shall be compelled to confiscate some coal." He reported that there were between 400 and 500 families in Marion without coal.

R. M. McClure, secretary of the Marion Chamber of Commerce, was named Marion county chairman in a nationwide campaign to pledge everybody to conserve food during the war crisis.

Twin sons were born to Mr and Mrs. William Houk of North State street, a son to Mr. and Mrs. William S. Stearns of Sharp street and a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Rowland D. Reamsnyder of East Church street.

French Crow gave a talk on "Teaching in the School" at a meeting of the child welfare and social circle at the McKinley school.

What The Girls Think

New Nationwide Survey Reveals Movie Actors Lacking in Popularity.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12—A nationwide survey of American girls between the ages of 18 to 25, just completed by research workers, revealed that a majority voted President Roosevelt, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, and the Duke of Windsor, as "world's most admired among prominent people." Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt was fourth in popularity. Movie actors trailed far in the rear.

Results of the survey, which was made to discover facts about the coming generation of housewives shopping at the nation's half million retail food stores, were quoted by C. M. Chester, General Foods chairman, speaking here before the seventh annual forum of the Herald Tribune Institute at the Waldorf Astoria. The data, Mr. Chester said, presented a "composite picture of the American girl, 1937 model."

The girls questioned represented a "scientific cross-section of the nation's population, including girls working in factories, stores, and offices and farmer's daughters, and college coeds."

More Independent.

Seven out of every 10 girls said it was "less necessary" to get married now, compared with their mothers' day. Asked what they thought was the smallest weekly income that a young couple could get married on and get along, the majority of girls estimated between $20 and $30. The lowest estimate was $2.50 a week and the highest was $80. One girl said: "A young couple can get along on love."

Commenting, Mr. Chester said: "As a manufacturer, I should prefer to hear that marriageable girls fixed a higher standard of family living, for business will prosper more surely when we have increased the nation's purchasing power. The young ladies seem modest in their demands."

When asked to fix the ideal number of children for a modern family, a third of the young women said, "two," and about two-thirds said, "two to three." The highest figure was 10 children and one girl in every hundred said, "none."

Willing To Sacrifice.

One significant thing that we noticed, Chester said, is the modern girl's ambitions. She seeks self-improvement and financial independence. She wants marriage, children, and a good education, and is willing to accept sacrifices to achieve her destiny. The "clinging vine" type of girl is noticeable by her absence.

The survey, Mr. Chester told the forum, which had Mrs. Roosevelt as guest of honor, indicated that 94 per cent of American girls consider a college education more desirable than it was in their mothers' day. A majority of the girls questioned said they intended to work after marriage.

The survey further indicated that more than three-fourths of the young women in the United States feel today that it's more important to take an active part in politics than it was in their mothers' day.

Refuting, apparently, various charges of radicalism allegedly rife among American youth, only three girls in every hundred questioned said they were "radical." Fifty-four per cent said they are "conservative." The others said they were "liberal" or gave no reply.

Significant was the young women's comment that, outside the United States, the countries to which they feel most friendly are England, France and Canada.

Seven out of ten girls declared it was more important than ever to save for old age, and more than half said it's more important today to own one's home than in former years. Six girls out of ten said they attend church regularly. The others gave these excuses: "Too lazy," "lack of interest," "too busy," "inconvenient."

According to Mr. Chester, more than half of the girls questioned said it was more important to have post-marriage careers than it was in their mothers' day, and four in ten said it was "more important" than it was in mothers' day to be a good housekeeper.

"Three-fourths of those questioned," Mr. Chester remarked, "said it was more important, or at least just as important, to be a good cook now compared with their mothers' day. More than half said they had taken cookery courses in school or college. Apparently tomorrow's housewives are going to make husbands eager to come home for dinner."

"Dead" at 23.

A young man with enough slayings charged against him to put him into several electric chairs was sentenced by Judge Frank L. Kloeb to Leavenworth penitentiary for robbing a bank at Weston, O., last March.

His term is to be 25 years. The judge could have sentenced him to death. Or the federal authorities could have turned him over to the states of Oklahoma or New Mexico where he is wanted for four murders. But it would hardly have been much different for him. With a 25-year sentence in a severe federal prison ahead of him, he is practically dead now, insofar as his place in society is concerned.

If he lives to serve his term out, he will be 58. He can start life from there, perhaps. But there will not be enough time left to do anything worth while.

His name, which does not matter a great deal because it will soon become a number in the justice department's criminal files, is George Embry, a sworn enemy of law and order, and a foolish young man who thought he was smart enough to take what he wanted with a gun in his hand and get away with it.

Fathers ought to tell their sons about careers like this. They ought to impress their sons' minds indelibly with the inevitable end of lawlessness. And most fathers do, but, apparently, some do not.—Toledo Times

In New York

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 12—George Palmer Putnam, husband of Amelia Earhart, has not as yet mourned the brave flyer as dead. He has glimmers of hope that somewhere on some forlorn dot of an island along the outer fringe of the world she and her navigator, Fred Noonan, may be leading a Robinson Crusoe life.

Of course, such a hope, even to him, becomes fantastical at times, but he clings to it. Putnam, a quiet, self-effacing fellow interested chiefly in rare books, has aged much since his life was cracked up by the long and agonizing suspense of the flying tragedy.

He had undergone several of these torturing interludes on other ocean hops of Miss Earhart and looked forward to the around-the-globe flight, which was fatal, as her last. She is said to have promised him she would make no more of a perilous nature.

Among the long-standing column feuds is that between Walter Lippman and Heywood Broun. They were long co-workers on the old Morning World. Broun, with great glee, frequently hurls a journalistic javelin at Lippman, but if it has brought blood it has not shown up in Lippman's column. He ignores the thrusts completely, which is so often disconcerting.

The greyhounds or ocean liner gamblers have had a most profitable season this summer. Their pluckings were enormous—one middle-western industrialist is said to have been taken for $42,000 in a three-day session. Ship attendants can spot the greyhounds on sight. Rarely do they resemble gamblers. And when they are spotted, up go the placards: "Professional Gamblers Aboard." But that rarely does any good. The professionals have a way of jockeying relaxing passengers into asking them to join a friendly game. And, of course, there are always the accomplices. The average card shark is indeed a shark at bridge and poker. And he does not always have to cheat. The majority can make plenty playing fairly. But if luck is against them they have no scruples in indulging the well known tricks.

After the fashion most of us love the rogue. I have a secret liking for the companionship of the ocean gambler in crossings. I have known several around New York and on shipboard. They are the frankest of all who live by their wits and rarely deny their calling. In fact, they like to romance about it. There was one light-hearted chap known among his guild as the name of a fruit. Say "Apples," which was not quite it. One time, coming up the gangplank at Plymouth, I hailed him from the deck by his moniker. He flushed, and as he passed clipped out of the side of his mouth: "Nix. On this ship I am Col. Jeffers." "My mother-in-law was along and one evening in the coffee room "Col. Jeffers" strolled by, stopped and turned on his charm, telling the dear old lady of his own mother, shaking off a vagrant tear so doing, and of his church activities and his noble faith in mankind. He made such an impression it was weeks before I told her he was a professional rascal.

Yet it occurs I'm lacking in appreciation for touts. While strolling among the 50-cent bookies one day at Latonia, I listened to the glib patter of one of the genus. And as a result of his enticing ring-a-do played a 20 to 1 shot on the nose. The horse romped in and I waited around for the tout to claim his share, but he never showed up.

LONDON—From a background of Eton college and an austere diplomatic career, Sir Robert Vansittart writes successful plays, poetry and other literature.

His duty as permanent under secretary of state for foreign affairs is to keep the empire's foreign office running smoothly, whoever the foreign secretary is or whatever the political crisis. Vansittart has been the real "man behind the scenes" in the foreign affairs department at Whitehall for eight years.

He was an important figure in the Ethiopian crisis, the Spanish situation, the Mediterranean "piracy" conference and other serious diplomatic developments. Yet he found time to write "Passion B," a light comedy.

His latest play, to be produced this season in London's West End, is a captivating romance. It deals with the love of a rich, conservative peer's daughter for a socialist candidate for parliament.

Of it, he said:

"I am very pleased, as it has been more than 15 years since I had a play on."

Writing has been Sir Robert's hobby since his days at Eton. At 18 he wrote a play in French which was produced in Paris. A book of his poems was published last year.

Once, before the World war, he had two plays running in London at once.

A Diplomat Since '02.

He entered the diplomatic service in 1902 when he was 21 and has held many appointments at home and abroad. He has served under a procession of premiers and foreign secretaries, the latest of the latter being dapper Anthony Eden, successor to austere Sir Samuel Hoare.

A robust, vigorous man, Sir Robert several times has been mentioned for an ambassadorship, twice for the post at Washington. He has stuck to the more solid side of the foreign service.

His first wife was the daughter of the late General William C. Keppenheimer, banker and business man of Jersey City, N. J. They had a son and a daughter.

Lady Vansittart died in 1928. Three years later Sir Robert married Lady Barclay, daughter of Herbert Ward and widow of Sir Colville Barclay.

Final Episode in Tragic Story of Marion Girl of Pioneer Days Who Met Death in Wild West

Recent restoration of the old Quarry street cemetery by public-spirited Marion citizens under the leadership of Charles E. Cords has recalled the tragic story of Helen Boulton, who at the age of 19 ran away from her home here toward the close of the Civil war to seek her lover, a youth who had departed for the West and whom she believed had been fighting with a troop of scouts in the Union cause. At the end of the first installment, published yesterday, she had become an adopted member of a Los Veras family consisting of Juan, Jose and Angelica Diaz. From that point the story tells how she finally came across her lover, only to have her love changed to contempt, and how death from gunfire was followed by return of her body to the old Quarry street cemetery, where it now rests in an unmarked grave. The story has been written by George N. Hinds, former member of The Star's editorial staff, from the original notes he made more than 30 years ago. The second and final installment follows.

THE GIRL was without funds, but Juan, Jose and Angelica shrugged their shoulders, waved their hands and laughed their indifference to that detail. She was a lady and pretty ladies did not need money in New Mexico when they could get a job. One was waiting for her in the grand drinking and dancing place conducted by Juan and Jose. Angelica made it plain to Helen, whose Cockney accents amused her, although her knowledge of English was limited. The place had long been made famous to both Mexican and Americano by the presence of the beautiful singer and dancer Angelica. The addition of the exquisite Helen would mean more, very much more in the established popularity.

Taught to Dance.

Helen remained until after the close of the Civil war in the care and keeping of this worthy family. In that time she learned what is commonly termed as "dog" Spanish, a mixture of the Mexican and Castilian tongues. Angelica taught her to play the guitar, the art of the castinets, the wild poses and dreamy abandon of the Spanish dances and with the help of Juan and Jose kept her feet sternly in the paths of rectitude from which she never departed.

Juan and Jose were of middle age and they watched with jealous care their much younger sister. This protection was extended to Helen and Jose in particular was as a father to her. While there were nights of wild delirium in their place which led to occasional shootings of which the good Father Roumain did not approve, they were God fearing people and did their church duties with real charity and goodness in their hearts.

Hostilities were over, but bitterness was rife in the states and territories of the great southwest when Helen decided to pursue the quest for the sweetheart for whom she yearned and to turn to Kansas for that purpose. Her determination revealed to Jose had as its sequel the establishment of a new liquor emporium and dance hall, at the sign of the Golden Eagle, in Dodge City, Kansas, the venture combining the financial fortunes of a Mexican bartender and an alleged Spanish dancing girl.

Kansas was at that time still in the throes of Jayhawking and her borders were filled with many classes of Union soldiery. Indians, the Cheyennes and Kiowas, were troublesome but the two-gun and Winchestered bad man was dreaded more.

Helen felt sure that if the youth she sought appeared in the state he would be sure to visit Dodge City and enjoy the charms of the Golden Eagle, where a great tenderness and welcome was waiting for him, with Jose as sponsor for her conduct.

A Dauntless Pair.

"Wild Bill" Hikok sat on a cottonwood log and emptied a new Colt revolver in a string of six perfect shots through a knot hole in the rough, unpainted siding of the new liquor emporium and dancing place, at the sign of the Golden Eagle in Dodge City. The hole was near the eaves of the building and was a full 100 paces from the marksman. Beside the blonde, mild-mannered Bill sat Frank James, also blonde, suave and poker faced.

After the shots rang out in the primitive street the steel gray eyes of each met in an understanding gaze. It was an object lesson for James. James was as deadly as the cobra, but he comprehended fully as he looked into the gentle, smiling face of "Wild Bill," the pastmaster of all the killers in all the blazing West, the sheriff of Dodge City, military post, cow camp and lair of dangerous men at their worst.

James, who had been trooping with the blonde, blue-eyed Kentucky school teacher known as Quantrell, the guerilla chief, was not alone. His brother, the red-bearded Jesse, was not far away. Quantrell had fallen in a clash with federal cavalry within a gunshot of the spot where he had taught the Kentucky youth and the outfit had turned to the leadership of the James brothers.

The gang had ridden into Dodge City to roister and make merry in defiance of this "Wild Bill" sheriff. Hence the object lesson.

Helen Disillusioned.

The bandits still wore hickory shirts and the uniform of the Confederate states of America. As many of them stood grouped about the entrance to the Golden Eagle a youth thrust himself forward through the crowd guided by the sight of Helen, who was pirouetting in all the grace and poise of a beautiful Spanish dance. The young bandit rushed to her in all eagerness and pride of possession. Grasping her he threw an arm about her and kissed her passionately. Helen's hour had come. Her lover was there. But no! She thrust him from her as she would a reptile. Her black eyes with lowered lids were as shrouded lamps of satanic fury. Her face was frozen with horror. This swaggering, swashbuckling youth wore a rebel uniform and on the brim of his campaign hat reposed a butternut, the hated emblem of the despised Northern "Copperhead."

Slowly she backed away from him to the flag-draped bar which she had arranged with care against the coming of her soldier lover. There she paused facing him, her eyes boring into his with all the malignant hate burning up her heart. She hissed the Spanish epithet "cor-r-r-rumbo" and laying a hand on the bar behind her she said in Spanish, "Hand me an iron, Jose."

It required a brave man to give her a weapon at such a moment, but Jose was her friend and he was brave.

The youth waited for no further developments, but turned into the crowd and to save his face explained, "She is my wife," which was a lie.

Leaves for New Scenes.

Under the stars and the watchful care of Calamity Jane with Helen aboard her piebald pony, "Wild Bill" sent her to a distant camp that night. Then began a career in which her wares found appreciation in military posts and mining camps and she became known to thousands of men in everp degree of the social order and worshipped by those who knew of her truly womanly qualities given inspiration by Jose, Juan and Angelica.

Rush Bowe had come up from Mexico where he had been on secret service for the government incident to Mexican troubles. He met his confederate, Captain Jack Crawford, in a mining camp lying low in the shadows of the Sierras. Here they were to witness the last lines of the last chapter of the life of Helen Boulton, written in red.

A gamblers' quarrel. The roar of heavy calibered weapons. A smoke-filled room. A dead girl lying across the faro dealer's body. She had come into a crossfire in passing through the room.

Rough men, bad men, bowed above her in tears and anguish and the hands of those same men dressed her in her pitiful finery and prepared her body for a long journey back to the wee mother in the home of John Boulton in Marion. These men had found a picture of her mother in her effects, together with a letter received by Helen at Dodge City.

A freighter was found that would take the body to "steel" and ship it thence to Marion in a rude coffin made by a card sharp who had once been a carpenter.

On this box was painted in an uncertain mixture of upper and lower case letters:

Helen Boulton
Else
Mira Kulus

Ironed out by Slim and Long Ike. Bad shootin' which they very much regret.

They are both of 'em dead.

During her stay in the camp Helen had won the attention of a young man who had adopted the name of a notorious Mexican bandit and under that name, Joaquin Miller, was later to attain international renown as the "poet of the Sierras." Her Spanish Gypsy like costumes, poses and dancing, her hint of a Turkish name and her Cockney accent amused this young man. A short burial service preceded the departure of the freighter for the nearest rail station and for this service young Miller was asked to deliver an oration.

A Goodbye Token.

A pair of miner's scales was placed on the head of the coffin and as the mourners filed past each poured his contribution of dust or nuggets into the pan, the scale being adjusted to its full capacity.

Years later Captain Crawford could remember but a fragment of the oration given by the young poet, as follows:

"She came clowning in cap and bell, decked in the orders of her calling, her craft the art of luring the souls of weary men out of the misty vales into the sunshine where she lives.

"Words are ever the fashioning of the mind to make description of what the heart contains or the eye descries, but comes the time when stricken men are mute and find relief in silence. It is thus we gather here, strong men in tears as weeping children group about a wounded pet.

"As falls the lark before the ruthless hand, lilting her harmonies to the glories of the morning and the rising sun, so fell this gentle minstrel while her day was young.

"Her song is but an echo in the hearts of those who loved her. The brutal hour that wrought this marbled effigy of what she was has with her spirit sped beyond the Great Divide, but from yon mountain tops he flings the kiss of memory and understanding, while Hope, bearing her golden torch, lights a star to guide her on."

A year after the death of Helen, Boulton with his family turned west. They crossed the river at Hannibal and dropped into oblivion.

THE END.

LIPPMANN WRITES ON AFFAIRS OF THE DAY

longer considered war. The peoples who, obviously, are everywhere overwhelmingly opposed to war, have arrived at a condition of mind where anything is still regarded as peace which does not subject too many of them to being mobilized and bombarded.

We have all come to have this feeling. We hope only that the destroying flood will not rise high enough to wash us off the little hill on which we sit and are still comparatively dry. That is about all that we mean by "peace" today. More and more we have become so used to disorder, enmities and violence that we are grateful if only our own homes are not actually invaded.

Thus as compared with what we ourselves were like 25 years ago, we are already to a considerable degree barbarized. Our older selves would think rather poorly of us, I imagine, if they saw us now. We have learned to accept, to treat as more or less normal and not to be too indignant about, cruelty on a massive scale and with it deception, inhumanity and dishonor. We have made great progress in learning to be insensitive; we are unlearning with amazing rapidity those civilized notions of decent dealing which not so long ago we thought were instinctive. Not only have we ceased to defend the ideals we profess: we have begun to find it more convenient not to believe in them too much. So we are rather like a man who might persuade himself not to consider it arson if only his barn and his orchard and his fences are set afire, who would even feel grateful for small favors if somehow the conflagration is arrested at the walls of his residence before it roasts him alive while he lies in bed.

Chance Is Fair

Now my impression is that in this sense of the word there exists a very fair chance of continuing peace in Europe. A prettier outlook than that I was unable to discover, and reasonable grounds for greater optimism than that do not, I think, exist. The best one can say is that a head-on collision of the great powers can very possibly be averted; that though they are engaged in a deadly struggle, the actual fighting can perhaps be excluded from the heart of Europe while it is being carried on in the outlying dependencies. But there is nothing now in sight which can compose the quarrel and really terminate the struggle in which the great powers are engaged; unless decisive and heroic measures are taken, this counterfeit peace must exhaust them all, must degrade cumulatively the general standard of life, and in the end set men at each other's throats in a desperate struggle for mere personal survival.

For in this miserable paralysis, that men call peace, the world—which is already too poor to satisfy the awakened expectations of the masses—is growing poorer is living on its capital, is squandering its labor on unemployment, on armaments, on showy public improvements. The real income of the mass of the people is sinking all over Europe. This counterfeit peace prohibits a genuine recovery. For that can come only by the confident resumption of productive labor; and this is prohibited in the totalitarian states and discouraged in the semi-free states. So when at last the accumulated reserves have been spent and the stratagems of invisible taxation are worn out, a reckoning will be due.

The foreboding of that reckoning haunts the minds of the rulers of Europe and the effort to avert it is what drives them to ever more desperate expedients. The rulers of Europe do not sleep well, and there is every reason to think that they are desperately sincere in their hysterical proclamations of how much they fear what they call bolshevism. They know, though they dare not admit it in their censored newspapers, that the governmental systems they are operating are in the end unworkable, that already they are badly strained and complicated, and that the material and spiritual condition of their subjects must at last become intolerable.

MARION STUDENTS TO AID IN CEREMONY

Forest Sharrock of 238 East Center street and Wesley Neidhart of Green Camp, freshmen at Heidelberg college in Tiffin, are assisting in arranging for the inauguration of Dr. Clarence E. Josephine as new president of the college, according to a news report from Tiffin.

LAWRENCE WRITES ON CAPITAL SITUATION

tion could readily vote "aye" on the motion to begin "quo warranto" proceedings, stating that it was in the public interest to have the matter decided and that a vote for the resolution was not necessarily a vote for or against Mr. Black either on the Klan issue or any other question affecting him personally or his qualifications.

There is, of course, no way by which Mr. Black's qualifications can be reviewed by a court because the senate has presumably weighted those qualifications and passed judgment thereon when confirmation was voted. But the senate itself can properly wish to have a constitutional question settled. Members of the senate who thought last August that the constitutional issue was not relevant may justly confess that further study and information makes it desirable to bring a test case.

The Constitutional question is whether a member of the senate may lawfully be appointed to a civil office in which the "emoluments" have been increased by an act of congress, passed while he was a member of the senate. Mr. Black was a member of the senate on March 2, 1937, when congress passed a law increasing the "emoluments" of all supreme court justices by making their retired pay more certain than it ever had been before against possible curtailment by any subsequent congress.

The principle involved and the precedents that will be made in the Black case are far more important than any personal questions, because, if members of congress can increase the emoluments of civil offices under the federal government and get themselves appointed to them, then the article in the Constitution which specifically forbids this sort of thing will have been plainly rendered a dead letter. The real issue is: Shall the Constitution be ignored? Shall the new deal be permitted to get away with the Black deal? Only the people, by their letters and telegrams to members of the senate, can give answer to those questions.

How to Make Better Cough Remedy Than You Can Buy

A Big Saving, and It's So Easy! No Cooking!

Cough medicines usually contain a large quantity of sugar syrup—a good ingredient, but one which you can easily make at home. Take 2 cups of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking! No trouble at all.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of truly wonderful medicine for coughs due to colds. It is far better than anything you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It lasts a long time, never spoils, and children love it.

This is positively the most effective, quick-acting cough remedy that money could buy. Instantly, you feel it penetrating the air passages. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the inflamed membranes and makes breathing easy. You've never seen its equal for prompt and pleasing results.

Pinex is a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, the most reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.
